Of Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—A virtual check-rein on President Roosevelt's discretionary powers has been written into proposed cash-and-carry neutrality legislation by its administration sponsors, it was disclosed today when a draft of the bill was put before the full senate foreign relations committee.

Under the bill, congress would have the authority to invoke the nation's neutrality law in any international emergency whenever it felt that the President was unwise in delaying application of the law's restrictions against foreign belligerents.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—President Roosevelt returned to Washington this morning from Hyde Park to resume personal direction of the administration's fight in congress to get the arms embargo repealed.

The two-day stay at his family home on the Hudson afford the President his first real rest since the European war broke out. Despite his obvious intention of assuming direct command of strategy in the impending senate battle, the President came back to the White House without any advance engagements. He may see—probably will—various senate leaders during the day but the appointments were not arranged overnight.

The executive also had decided not to call in the "big four"—Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead, Senate Majority Leader Barkley and House Majority Leader Rayburn—as his custom on Monday mornings during regular sessions of Congress. Whether the practice will be resumed later in (Continued on Page Two)

FLOYD GIBBONS, 52, RENOWNED AS WAR REPORTER, IS DEAD

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 25—Death today had forever stilled the tireless typewriter fingers and the machine gun voice of Floyd Gibbons, one of the most famous of war correspondents, as the new war which might have given him his greatest assignment raged on in Europe.

Although the once-rugged six foot Gibbons, whose trade-mark was a white linen patch over his missing left eye, had experienced perilous adventure while on assignment in virtually every quarter of the globe, he died peacefully on his farm in Cherry Valley, near Stroudsburg. He was 52.

The heart ailment which claimed Gibbons' life had kept him virtually an invalid for the last several months but only yesterday a report was current on Broadway that the veteran war correspondent had smelled gunpowder again and was to be given an assignment covering the new war.

Gibbons was perpetually present when the big wars broke out this led the late Will Rogers to observe of a threatening war: "It's not official until Gibbons arrives."

Wounded By Snipers
The eye Gibbons lost on a French battlefield in the World War was the price he paid for a career of excitement such as few newspapermen have known. The eye was shot away and his left arm drilled by two machine gun bullets from a German sniping crew in Belleau Wood, near Chateau-Thierry in June, 1918.

Gibbons' journalistic career was studded with spectacular scoops and hair-raising adventures, and his success as a reporter was credited in large measure to his possession of those three things so necessary to a newspaperman—unflinching energy, persistency and luck.

He covered the World War, the Japanese invasion of China in 1932 and the Italian conquest of Ethiopia, among other war assignments.

His newspaper assignments took him all over the world, and it often was said of him that he crowded a century of thrills into a few years.

He was born in Washington, D. C., on July 16, 1887, and began his newspaper career on the Minneapolis Daily News in 1907. Later he worked on the Milwaukee Free Press and the Minneapolis Tribune.

His first assignment as war correspondent came in 1912 when the Chicago Tribune sent him to cover the battle of Naco on the Arizona-Sonora frontier, and he (Continued on Page Two)

HUNTERS FIND LUCK VARIED IN COUNTY DISTRICT

Hundreds of Circleville and Pickaway County hunters were in the hills and woodlands Monday, opening day of squirrel season.

Reports from hunters returning to the city about noon showed results were fair. Some had their limits of four squirrels while others reported they did not even see squirrels in woods where they formerly had good luck. Dry weather, causing small streams to dry up, has resulted in squirrels traveling. The dry weather has made hunting difficult, due to the noise underfoot.

No hunting accidents were reported for the first day.

The season lasts until nightfall on October 10. The legal limit is four a day. After the first day the possession limit is eight.

JERSEY PREACHER GOES TO TRIAL IN PLOT DEATH

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 25—A parade of 55 witnesses was marshaled by the state today to appear against the Rev. Walter A. Dworecki, who is to go on trial on a charge of arranging for the murder of his daughter, Wanda, 18, in order to collect $5,000 insurance on her life.

After Dworecki's trial is completed, Peter Schewchuk, a former lodger at the Dworecki home who is accused of the actual strangling, will go on trial.

Fleet, Being Prepared For Maneuvers, Forced To Remain In Harbor

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25—At least 34 persons were missing and feared to have been drowned today in the wake of a gale that broke an eight-day heat wave but blazed a trail of destruction across most of Southern California.

Twenty-five persons were missing at sea and more than a dozen boats of all sizes were overdue and unreported.

Those feared to have lost their lives in the heavy sea included 24 on the sport fishing boat Spray which capsized at Point Mugu, approximately midway between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. Only two men of the 26 aboard the Spray reportedly were saved.

The sport fishing ship Sunshine, with 25 aboard, was unreported out of San Pedro.

Two men were swept off the Long Beach breakwater by high breakers and believed lost.

Squall Overtakes Boat

The Spray was overturned by a southeast squall as she returned from Anacapa Island to the Point Mugu fishing camp. The pilot house, where 24 of the 26 passengers were believed huddled, immediately was torn away by ground swells.

"Someone pushed a life preserver at me in the hold and somehow I got out safely," said Abe Agins, Warner Bros. paint set foreman. "I felt a terrific jar when the boat hit the shore but I didn't know what had happened."

The storm smashed vessels against piers, breakwaters and beaches. It was a tragic finale to the worst heat wave ever to visit southern California. From all sections of the coast came reports of rescues.

Tragedy piled on tragedy. Coast guardsmen were unable to find a trace of three youths who were seen clinging to a skiff off Point Fermin. Two lost their lives when a cabin cruiser was dashed against the Los Angeles breakwater. A woman was drowned when a yacht capsized at Newport Beach. Two youths died in the surf at Brighton Beach on Terminal Island.

Two Boats Missing

No word had been received from two sport boats, Dispatch and Indiana. These craft had 70 persons aboard. A report that one (Continued on Page Two)

SWISS DECLARE REDS ONLY ONES WAR WILL HELP

BASLE, Switzerland, Sept. 25—Josef Stalin, reaching out for ever greater power in central Europe and the Balkans, was painted by the Swiss press today as the only eventual victor in Europe's war.

The Soviets alone have profited by defeat of Poland, the Basle National Zeitung declared. "Gone is the eastern dream of a Germany from Berlin to Baghdad," the paper said. "Bismarck said the Balkans were not worth the bones of a single Prussian grenadier, but now the bones of many thousand German soldiers are lying beyond the so-called Russo-German frontier in Poland."

The Swiss press generally doubted Germany's ability to withhold the "red peril" anywhere in Europe, expressing belief that Soviet influence already far exceeds that of Germany and Italy in central Europe and the Balkans.

How Poland Was Carved Up

THIS map shows how German and Russian war lords meeting in Bialystok, Poland, divided the ill-fated republic. The Nazi army will rule west of the demarcation line, the Red army east of it. Line runs north and south along the Pilsa, Narw, Vistula and San rivers, cutting as yet unconquered Warsaw in half. Russia gets nearly two thirds of the land, but Germany's territory is the more industrialized.

Mothers Who Lost Sons In World War Honored

The auxiliary of Howard Hall Post, American Legion, joined Sunday in national observance of Gold Star Mothers Day by sending remembrances to Circleville's mothers whose sons died during the World War. Mrs. B. T. Hedger was in charge of the work for the auxiliary.

Mothers honored during the day included Mrs. J. J. Rooney, East Union Street, whose son, Sergeant Charles Rooney, died of wounds in France; Mrs. H. P. Folsom, East Main Street, whose son, Henry Page Folsom, Jr., was killed overseas; Mrs. Mary Kochensperger, Lancaster Pike, whose son, Sergeant James Kochensperger, died in action at Chateau-Thierry; Mrs. Riley Bitzer, Pickaway Township, whose son, Edward, died in France; Mrs. Harley E. Mowery, East Main Street, whose son, Robert died in France; Mrs. Orin Baker, Half Avenue, mother of Robert Lane who died of pneumonia in France; Mrs. Abbie Gusman, East Franklin Street, mother of Oakley Gusman, who died of influenza during the epidemic at Camp Sherman, and Mrs. Sarah E. Ross, East Mill Street, whose son, Milford, also died at Camp Sherman.

COUGHLIN CALLS FOR LETTERS ON NEUTRALITY LAW

DETROIT, Sept. 25—Continuing his fight against any move to lift the American arms embargo, the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin today asked his followers to send ten thousand letters to Congress to fight President Roosevelt on the neutrality law issue.

"While we abhor both Hitlerism and Stalinism," he said in his regular broadcast yesterday, "we are not concerned if the neutrality act and embargo strengthen or weaken France or England, strengthen or weaken Germany or Russia, even though these latter nations are classified as the aggressors; for we are American nationals and not the world's international policemen."

"Our supreme concern is our own permanent peace."

He said the "march on Washington" for which he asked last week is unnecessary in view of the rising flow of letters and telegrams to congressmen called in session by the President.

"At this juncture," he said, "there is no need to waste either time or energy in marching on Washington. Remain at your posts. Marshal your fellow citizens in your neighborhood, club, office or church. Instruct your congressmen to hold fast to the Neutrality Act as it has existed since 1936, making only those amendments that will strengthen it."

PURCHASING AGENT RAPS FERGUSON'S ACCUSATION

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25—Accusing State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson of "grasping at straws," State Purchasing Agent C. J. Stark today claimed that Gov. John W. Bricker ordered the practice of charging a commission for inspection of Ohio coal purchases stopped a few weeks after he took office.

Answering an examiner's report released by Ferguson which charged that 10 cents a ton commission was collected on coal bought for the Athens State Hospital, Stark defended the commission as a perfectly fair fee for inspection to assure the state of getting good coal.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

War developments today:
WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt returned from Hyde Park as the senate foreign relations committee met to consider a new neutrality bill repealing the arms embargo.

PARIS—Preparations for a major engagement were said to be "budding slowly," as Communiqué No. 43 announced: "local improvements were made in our positions (in the Saarland.) The enemy's artillery was active southeast of Zebrucken."

LONDON—Britain turned down German peace feelers put out through Premier Mussolini of Italy, and announced a new "pamphlet raid" on Germany.

BERLIN—General headquarters confirmed sinking of a British destroyer by a submarine, and said eight French planes were shot down on the Western Front.

BASLE—Swiss observers told of three French aerial attacks on the German Zeppelin plant at Friedrichshafen.

MOSCOW—The Red army announced its forces were within 40 miles of the Russo-German line of demarcation in Poland, and 10,000 Poles were captured.

BUDAPEST—Warsaw broadcasts told of incessant German bombardments, with 1,000 Polish civilians killed and tremendous damage to the city, but its defenders still held on.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 25—New reports of a naval battle in the North Sea were received in Copenhagen today, substantiated by dispatches that warships had been sighted on the horizon off the coast of Norway.

(Editor's note: Residents of Jutland last week reported a terrific naval encounter in the Skagerrak. Explosions heard at that time, however, were traced to Swedish target practise.)

The population of Algey, southwest of Bergen, Norway, reported hearing heavy gunfire at intermittent intervals since early morning.

House and windows shook under the impact of explosions.

Late last night, warships were visible on the horizon, moving slowly and cautiously in what was believed to be a heavily-mined area.

At about the same time, fifteen or twenty German trawlers arrived off Hjeltefjord in the vicinity of Algey.

No further details of the reported sea battle were known.

BERGEN, Norway, Sept. 25—Heavy gunfire, far outside Norwegian territorial waters and possibly indicating a major sea battle, was heard in Bergen today.

Several warships were sighted during the early morning hours. The tremendous detonations shook Bergen's houses and rattled windowpanes.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 25—After being attacked with depth charges but not seriously damaged, the Polish submarine Zbik took refuge today in Stockholm harbor.

Crew of 50 Detained
Its crew of 50 men were interned. The Zbik was the third Polish U-boat to take refuge in Swedish territorial waters. Two others were interned at Waxholm last week.

Internment of the crew brought the total of Polish sailors held in Sweden to 170.

LONDON, Sept. 25—Chancellor Hitler is expected to go to the Western Front from Poland this week, according to reports in London today.

His arrival on the Westwall, Germans were represented as believing, will herald a monster "lightning stroke" to crush the allies.

On German City, Basle
Advices Report

BASLE, Switzerland, Sept. 25—Flying 90 miles into German territory, French airplanes last night made three attacks on the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen, eye-witnesses declared today.

The assaults occurred at 9, 10, and 11 o'clock at night.

Results of the attack, the first of their kind made by either allied power deep in Germany, were not known.

From the Swiss side, however, an aerial fight over the shores of Lake Constance could be seen, and loud bursts of anti-aircraft fire could be heard from Friedrichshafen, which is on the north shore of the lake.

British Drop More Pamphlets On Nazis

LONDON, Sept. 25—British airplanes staged another pamphlet "raid" on Germany during the night, a bulletin by the Ministry of Information announced today. The communiqué said:

"The Royal Air Force conducted successful daylight reconnaissance yesterday in Western Germany. Last night reconnaissance flights were made over Western and Northwestern Germany, in which leaflets were dropped. "All our aircraft returned safely, and met with no serious opposition."

PIKE JURY RESUMES

WAVERLY, Sept. 25—Ending a week's recess, a grand jury today was to resume questioning of witnesses in its investigation into alleged election irregularities in Pike County.

14 NAVY PLANES END LONG JUMP TO PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 25—Fourteen United States navy long range bombers today completed the first mass flight ever attempted between Hawaii and the Philippine Islands.

The ships arrived at 3:15 p. m., and came down by threes, proceeding to the aircraft carrier Langley which arrived in Manila yesterday.

The bombers followed the route used by the Pan American line and the trip was uneventful. However, one ship remained at Midway, having developed engine trouble.

LEGION STARTS ITS CONVENTION

Neutrality Question Vital As Men Who Fought Last War Gather

CHICAGO, Sept. 25—Conquered by an amiable army almost 250,000 strong, Chicago surrendered today to the American Legion as the veterans' organization formally opened its 21st annual national convention.

While throughout the city the legionnaires engaged in antics and thunderous frolics, the 1,398 official delegates, representing all states and territories of the nation, met in business sessions which promised to be of historic importance.

It was the urgent business of the delegates to decide how the Legion—composed of men who fought in the World War—feels with regard to the new war which has again made Europe a battlefield.

Already in pre-convention meetings and in speeches of leaders, it has become apparent that the Legion membership stands solidly behind all moves to keep the United States out of the new war. But to the convention itself, meeting in Chicago's coliseum, where presidents have been nominated, fell the task of deciding how the Legion believes American neutrality may best be protected.

The 1939 Legion meeting thus became more significant than any that has gone before, for the Legion may be the first nationwide organization to take a stand for or against President Roosevelt's proposed repeal of the arms embargo.

Some division of opinion existed among the Legion membership on the neutrality question. One group was believed ready to demand that the arms embargo be retained, while another was reported in favor of the repeal suggested by Mr. Roosevelt. Still a third group favored a compromise, with the Legion taking no stand either for or against the embargo question.

SEVEN PERSONS KNOWN DEAD IN STATE TRAFFIC

By International News Service

At least seven Ohioans lost their lives in week end traffic accidents, a survey disclosed today. The toll was heaviest in the Cleveland area where four persons were killed.

Two pedestrians were killed in Cleveland traffic. Emery J. Biggam, 45, was struck by an automobile while crossing the street with a woman companion, Mrs. Hattie Koepke, 34, and fatally injured. Mrs. Koepke was slightly injured. The driver of the car was released after questioning.

While trying to board a Cleveland street car Robert Kay, of Sandusky, was struck by an automobile that sped past the car and failed to stop. Kay's skull was fractured and he died a few hours later.

Another hit-skip driver was blamed for an accident near Avon Lake in which Miss Ethel Williams, 36, of Avon Lake Village, was injured fatally. Miss Williams was found lying at the side of the road shortly after she left her home to go to the store.

John Moran, 45, brother of Police Chief Francis Moran of Bellaire, was killed when his car struck a pole at Shadyside.

Twenty-two-year old Henry Yost, Wellston, was killed instantly when his motorcycle crashed into the rear of an automobile. (Continued on Page Two)

BERGEN, Norway, Sept. 25—Heavy gunfire, far outside Norwegian territorial waters and possibly indicating a major sea battle, was heard in Bergen today.

Several warships were sighted during the early morning hours. The tremendous detonations shook Bergen's houses and rattled windowpanes.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 25—After being attacked with depth charges but not seriously damaged, the Polish submarine Zbik took refuge today in Stockholm harbor.

Crew of 50 Detained

Its crew of 50 men were interned. The Zbik was the third Polish U-boat to take refuge in Swedish territorial waters. Two others were interned at Waxholm last week.

Internment of the crew brought the total of Polish sailors held in Sweden to 170.

Advices Report

BASLE, Switzerland, Sept. 25—Flying 90 miles into German territory, French airplanes last night made three attacks on the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen, eye-witnesses declared today.

The assaults occurred at 9, 10, and 11 o'clock at night.

Results of the attack, the first of their kind made by either allied power deep in Germany, were not known.

From the Swiss side, however, an aerial fight over the shores of Lake Constance could be seen, and loud bursts of anti-aircraft fire could be heard from Friedrichshafen, which is on the north shore of the lake.

British Drop More Pamphlets On Nazis

LONDON, Sept. 25—British airplanes staged another pamphlet "raid" on Germany during the night, a bulletin by the Ministry of Information announced today. The communiqué said:

"The Royal Air Force conducted successful daylight reconnaissance yesterday in Western Germany."

"Last night reconnaissance flights were made over Western and Northwestern Germany, in which leaflets were dropped."

"All our aircraft returned safely, and met with no serious opposition."

a lessening of the danger of Lithuanian security.

LONDON, Sept. 25—Britain's naval campaign against German submarines entered a new phase today after the sinking of the 31st British merchantman, as warships strove to bottle up German submarines which are now running low on supplies.

Most of the U-boats have been to sea from three to four weeks, it was believed, and the British hope to prevent their returning to bases for supplies, or venturing to sea again.

12 Crewmen Missing
The freighter Hazelside was shelled and sunk within sight of the South Irish shore Sunday by two U-boats. Twenty-two members of her crew were picked up after they took to lifeboats, but 12 are missing.

The Hazelside was en route from British Columbia to Liverpool. She was a vessel of 4646 tons. The 1510-ton Gertrud Blatt, a Swedish steamer bound with a cargo of cellulose for Bristol, Eng., was sent to the bottom off South Norway. A German airplane also took part in action against the ship. The crew of 18 was saved in lifeboats.

Since the outbreak of the war the toll of merchant ships is: British, 31; 148,913 tons; German, 41; 14,764 tons; French, 1; 3,747 tons; neutrals, 9; 25,002 tons.

The rescued members of the Hazelside's crew were picked up after six hours afloat on a small boat and a raft. Five were injured, one seriously. The captain is among the missing.

Radio Operator Birkett, one of the injured, said the merchantman was fired on without warning. "Two members of the crew were killed outright," he asserted, "and two of the ship's lifeboats were wrecked."

Swedes May Retaliate
A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said the sinking of the Gertrud Blatt created a furore in Sweden, where it was stated that the sinking of neutral ships affects all countries.

If, it was argued, the Germans decided that cellulose is contraband, they might as well say butter is contraband.

Reuters said the Swedes affirmed it would not be surprising if Sweden refused to supply Germany with iron ore. This stoppage, it was held, would be a blow to Germany, who has been importing 6,000,000 tons of ore yearly from Sweden.

CAPTAIN OF LOST SHIP APPLAUDS U-BOAT'S CHIEF

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 — The dramatic eyewitness story of the sinking of a German U-boat a few minutes after it had torpedoed the British freighter Kafiristan was told today by Capt. John Busby, skipper of the English vessel.

Capt. Busby and the 29 members of the Kafiristan crew who were rescued by the American Farmer after the freighter was torpedoed 350 miles off the Irish coast a week ago yesterday paid tribute to the gallantry of the U-boat commander.

"He was a grand man and a credit to his profession," said Captain Busby. The U-boat commander fired three shots across the bow of the Kafiristan. As the freighter dove to, he came alongside and through a megaphone shouted to the Kafiristan crew to abandon ship.

"After my ship had disappeared," Capt. Busby related, "the sub captain asked if we had plenty of water, provisions, cigars, cigarettes, and if we wanted a drink."

"While he was talking, an airplane swooped down and began to machine gun the sub."

"The U-boat returned the fire and started to dive. The airplane didn't drop any bombs in that first swoop but after circling she came back and dove straight for the conning tower of the sub which was just above the water and let go a bomb. There was a terrific explosion, a huge column of smoke arose and oil spread over the water. It was a direct hit."

The explosion also blew to bits a lifeboat carrying six members of the Kafiristan crew, killing them.

STARS DINE AT FAIR

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—Frederic March and his wife Florence Eldridge, stars of the "American Way," have a weekly date at the Danish restaurant at the New York World's Fair, with Richard Rodgers and Larry Hart the tune-smiths. Eavendropers claim March may do a musical show on Broadway soon instead of returning to Hollywood.

STREET CONSTRUCTION IN VILLAGE BRINGS SUITS

Two suits against the village of Laurelville have resulted from the reconstruction of Sweeney Street. Pearl A. Knece filed suit for $1,525 for alleged damages to his property. He says that by raising the level of the street the village has failed to provide proper drainage causing an overflow of water into his cellar and damaging his garden.

Charles Knece filed suit for $4,000 for a pulmonary condition which he alleges resulted from the unhealthy condition of his home caused by the reconstruction of the street.

Both actions seek injunctions against Laurelville funds in the Salt Creek Valley Bank. The actions were filed in Hocking County Common Pleas Court.

EMPHATIC 'NO' BRIT RESPONSE TO PEACE MOVE

London Tells Mussolini It Is In War To End 'Lawlessness'

LONDON, Sept. 25 — Britain's reply to German peace overtures sent via Rome today was a resounding double-barreled "no."

First was a flat rejection of the German "fait accompli" in Poland, coupled with a reiteration that Britain and France would fight to their goal—the extermination of Hitlerism.

Second was the announcement from "somewhere in France" that the British Expeditionary Force is still moving into position and concentrating forces preparatory to going into action.

Peace feelers came Saturday through Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, who suggested that any further extension of the war, after Germany had acquired what she wanted in Poland, seemed unreasonable. The ministry of information replied promptly:

"Official circles understand and appreciate the sincerity of Signor Mussolini's motives."

"But the suggestion that by not spreading the conflict further in view of the Russian 'fait accompli,' Great Britain and France have compromised their moral justification for attempting to annul the German 'fait accompli,' is not understood here."

Lawlessness Hit

"The decision of the British people to declare war was indeed a direct consequence of the invasion of Poland—but invasion of Poland was itself but further illustration of the lawlessness in international affairs which it is the principal purpose of this country to resist."

The statement then repeated Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statement to Parliament, that Britain's purpose in this struggle "is to redeem Europe from the recurring fear of German aggression, and enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties."

Whatever may be the results of Soviet action in Poland, the ministry's bulletin concluded, "this purpose will be prosecuted with unflinching determination."

That Poland is only the last of the victims of German aggression was stressed in the Daily Herald, which pointed to Austria, Spain, and Czechoslovakia.

If Hitler is not stopped now, the paper said, "many other countries will be invaded in the months to come."

Maisky Called

Viscount Halifax, British foreign minister, summoned Ivan Maisky, the Soviet ambassador Saturday evening and asked him for a statement on the ambitions of Russia in Poland, it was learned.

Halifax also asked Maisky for a definite outline from the Soviets on their future intentions in the greater sphere of the European war.

CAPITAL HEARS NAZIS ATTEMPT TO OPPOSE F. D.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—The nation's "G-men" today launched an investigation into state department information that Nazi Germany was trying to marshal public opinion in this country against President Roosevelt's proposal to repeal the arms embargo.

Meanwhile, Stephen T. Early, secretary to the President, said that Mr. Roosevelt would do nothing to counter the air campaign started by Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, the Detroit radio priest, who is also fighting repeal of the arms embargo.

Early revealed that it had been suggested to the President that Mr. Roosevelt start a "counter-movement" to Father Coughlin's drive. Early said, however:

"The President is not going to do it. The President is still standing on his statement regarding adjournment of politics on a unity basis."

The elderly physician shot Choiser three times in the stomach, police said. The shooting occurred in the rear of the Benton Evening News building.

Dr. Gore was immediately placed under arrest and taken to the Franklin County jail where his son, George, 32, is held awaiting trial for the murder of his stepmother, Mrs. Nancy Gore.

Germans Claim Destroyer Sunk

BERLIN, Sept. 25—In a second naval victory over the British, a German submarine sank a British destroyer early Sunday. German general headquarters confirmed today.

The name of the destroyer and the locality of its loss to the British were not given.

(Britain has not yet either confirmed or denied the German claim. British destroyers gross from 1100 to 1400 tons, as compared to the 22,000 tons of the aircraft carrier Courageous, sunk by a submarine with the loss of more than 500 lives last week.)

NATION'S CHIEF BACK AT WORK AFTER VACATION

Legislation To Alter Law Governing Munitions Given To Congress

the special session was not made known.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 — A neutrality bill opening the golden war markets of Europe to American industry, was submitted to the special session of Congress by the administration today and touched off one of the bitterest legislative struggles of this era.

The legislation started its rough trip through Congress when the senate foreign relations committee convened to consider it. Formal committee approval, throwing the fight into open debate on the senate floor, was not expected until later this week.

Would End Sale Ban

As approved by 15 of the 16 committee Democrats, the bill would repeal the present neutrality law ban on sale of American arms to foreign belligerents. It would substitute a strict cash-and-carry act permitting such sales, but providing that title to the purchase must change hands on United States soil and the goods must be hauled away in foreign boats.

President Roosevelt and his supporters contend that because this law would sweep the seas clean of American ships and American-titled commodities bound for belligerent ports it would keep this country out of old world conflict.

The bi-partisan group of isolationists led by Senator Borah (R) Idaho, opposing all proposals to lift the Neutrality Act arms embargo, will open a radio speaking campaign against arms embargo repeal this week. The World War flying ace Eddie Rickenbacker will open the group's campaign with an address tomorrow night.

The opposition faction contends decision of this country to sell arms and munitions to nations at war will be viewed by Germany as favoring France and Great Britain and therefore unneutral. Its leaders demand retention of the arms embargo. They say any other course means inevitable American involvement in the European War.

The administration's cash-and-carry bill, which does not contain a word about cash payment but simply specifies that title to U. S. war supplies must be transferred on American soil, entered the issue.

Today the fight was under way, a battle going deep into the vital policies of the United States. Some statesmen argue that Great Britain and France will give up their fight against Germany if America decides not to sell munitions abroad. Others argue that the U. S. must carry out the President's proposals for "measures short of war but stronger than mere words" against a totalitarian government considered the aggressor by the New Deal.

Over all the hubbub played currents of propaganda, politics, diplomatic pressures and honest differences.

At the outset administration forces claimed about 60 senate votes in favor of the cash-and-carry law but were uncertain

INDICTED MAN, 38, PLEADS GUILTY IN CORN THEFT

Fred Ryan, 38, of Harrisburg, scheduled to go on trial Tuesday on a charge of burglary and larceny, pleaded guilty in Common Pleas Court Monday to larceny and was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail by Judge Meeker Terwilliger.

The charge against Ryan involved the theft of 720 pounds of corn from the farm of James and Curtis Borror, Scioto Township. Harry Samuel Davidson, 18, Ashville Route 2, was indicted on a similar charge and is awaiting trial.

Judge Terwilliger said there was no evidence to prove Ryan entered a building. It was alleged that a slat was removed from the corn crib and the corn picked up after it rolled out.

Jurors ordered to report Tuesday for the Ryan trial have been notified to report Wednesday when Alvis Williams, Orient Route 2, is scheduled to go on trial on a charge of passing a forged check.

EMPHATIC 'NO' BRIT RESPONSE TO PEACE MOVE

London Tells Mussolini It Is In War To End 'Lawlessness'

LONDON, Sept. 25 — Britain's reply to German peace overtures sent via Rome today was a resounding double-barreled "no."

First was a flat rejection of the German "fait accompli" in Poland, coupled with a reiteration that Britain and France would fight to their goal—the extermination of Hitlerism.

Second was the announcement from "somewhere in France" that the British Expeditionary Force is still moving into position and concentrating forces preparatory to going into action.

Peace feelers came Saturday through Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, who suggested that any further extension of the war, after Germany had acquired what she wanted in Poland, seemed unreasonable. The ministry of information replied promptly:

"Official circles understand and appreciate the sincerity of Signor Mussolini's motives."

"But the suggestion that by not spreading the conflict further in view of the Russian 'fait accompli,' Great Britain and France have compromised their moral justification for attempting to annul the German 'fait accompli,' is not understood here."

Lawlessness Hit

"The decision of the British people to declare war was indeed a direct consequence of the invasion of Poland—but invasion of Poland was itself but further illustration of the lawlessness in international affairs which it is the principal purpose of this country to resist."

The statement then repeated Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statement to Parliament, that Britain's purpose in this struggle "is to redeem Europe from the recurring fear of German aggression, and enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties."

Whatever may be the results of Soviet action in Poland, the ministry's bulletin concluded, "this purpose will be prosecuted with unflinching determination."

That Poland is only the last of the victims of German aggression was stressed in the Daily Herald, which pointed to Austria, Spain, and Czechoslovakia.

If Hitler is not stopped now, the paper said, "many other countries will be invaded in the months to come."

Maisky Called

Viscount Halifax, British foreign minister, summoned Ivan Maisky, the Soviet ambassador Saturday evening and asked him for a statement on the ambitions of Russia in Poland, it was learned.

Halifax also asked Maisky for a definite outline from the Soviets on their future intentions in the greater sphere of the European war.

CAPITAL HEARS NAZIS ATTEMPT TO OPPOSE F. D.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—The nation's "G-men" today launched an investigation into state department information that Nazi Germany was trying to marshal public opinion in this country against President Roosevelt's proposal to repeal the arms embargo.

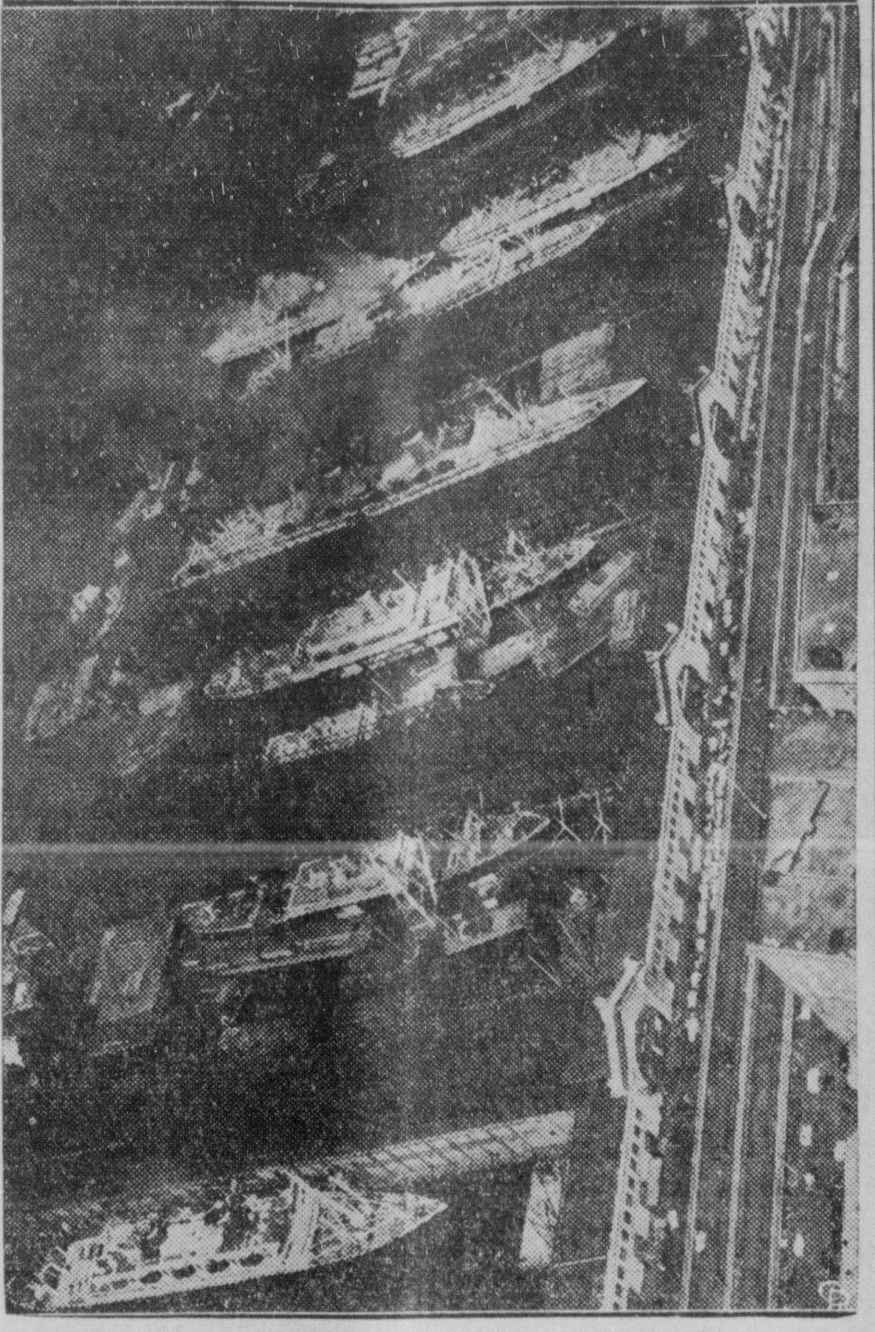

Meanwhile, Stephen T. Early, secretary to the President, said that Mr. Roosevelt would do nothing to counter the air campaign started by Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, the Detroit radio priest, who is also fighting repeal of the arms embargo.

Early revealed that it had been suggested to the President that Mr. Roosevelt start a "counter-movement" to Father Coughlin's drive. Early said, however:

"The President is not going to do it. The President is still standing on his statement regarding adjournment of politics on a unity basis."

Rescued from Sea

In 1917 he was appointed London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, and the Laconia, on which he was crossing the Atlantic, was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine 200 miles off the Irish coast.

He was rescued after a night of tossing on the ocean in a small boat, and sent the following laconic message to his office, which by that time was frantic with anxiety:

"Am cabling 3,000 Laconia sinking. Two Chicago women victims."

In France he was one of the 14 accredited newspaper correspondents attached to GHQ in General Pershing's staff.

His quest for the sensational dispatches that made him so famous took him to the front line trenches many times. He often was under fire, and it was during one of his visits to the front lines that he lost his left eye.

NATION'S CHIEF BACK AT WORK AFTER VACATION

the special session was not made known.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 — A neutrality bill opening the golden war markets of Europe to American industry, was submitted to the special session of Congress by the administration today and touched off one of the bitterest legislative struggles of this era.

The legislation started its rough trip through Congress when the senate foreign relations committee convened to consider it. Formal committee approval, throwing the fight into open debate on the senate floor, was not expected until later this week.

Would End Sale Ban

As approved by 15 of the 16 committee Democrats, the bill would repeal the present neutrality law ban on sale of American arms to foreign belligerents. It would substitute a strict cash-and-carry act permitting such sales, but providing that title to the purchase must change hands on United States soil and the goods must be hauled away in foreign boats.

President Roosevelt and his supporters contend that because this law would sweep the seas clean of American ships and American-titled commodities bound for belligerent ports it would keep this country out of old world conflict.

The bi-partisan group of isolationists led by Senator Borah (R) Idaho, opposing all proposals to lift the Neutrality Act arms embargo, will open a radio speaking campaign against arms embargo repeal this week. The World War flying ace Eddie Rickenbacker will open the group's campaign with an address tomorrow night.

The opposition faction contends decision of this country to sell arms and munitions to nations at war will be viewed by Germany as favoring France and Great Britain and therefore unneutral. Its leaders demand retention of the arms embargo. They say any other course means inevitable American involvement in the European War.

The administration's cash-and-carry bill, which does not contain a word about cash payment but simply specifies that title to U. S. war supplies must be transferred on American soil, entered the issue.

Today the fight was under way, a battle going deep into the vital policies of the United States. Some statesmen argue that Great Britain and France will give up their fight against Germany if America decides not to sell munitions abroad. Others argue that the U. S. must carry out the President's proposals for "measures short of war but stronger than mere words" against a totalitarian government considered the aggressor by the New Deal.

Over all the hubbub played currents of propaganda, politics, diplomatic pressures and honest differences.

At the outset administration forces claimed about 60 senate votes in favor of the cash-and-carry law but were uncertain

INDICTED MAN, 38, PLEADS GUILTY IN CORN THEFT

Fred Ryan, 38, of Harrisburg, scheduled to go on trial Tuesday on a charge of burglary and larceny, pleaded guilty in Common Pleas Court Monday to larceny and was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail by Judge Meeker Terwilliger.

The charge against Ryan involved the theft of 720 pounds of corn from the farm of James and Curtis Borror, Scioto Township. Harry Samuel Davidson, 18, Ashville Route 2, was indicted on a similar charge and is awaiting trial.

Judge Terwilliger said there was no evidence to prove Ryan entered a building. It was alleged that a slat was removed from the corn crib and the corn picked up after it rolled out.

Jurors ordered to report Tuesday for the Ryan trial have been notified to report Wednesday when Alvis Williams, Orient Route 2, is scheduled to go on trial on a charge of passing a forged check.

FARMERS MEET SOON TO ELECT NEW COMMITTEE

All Participating in '40
Of '39 AAA Programs
Asked To Ballot

OCT. 2, 3, 4, 5 SELECTED

Each Township To Choose Representatives To Direct Work

Election of members of the Pickaway County Agricultural Conservation Committee, who will direct the 1940 farm program, will be held early in October.

This was announced Monday by Paul Matthes, secretary of the county committee, as he started preparation of a schedule of township meetings for election of township committeemen and delegates to a county meeting for election of the county committee.

Although the schedule has not been completed, Mr. Matthes said the township meetings will be arranged for October 2, 3, 4 and 5.
At these township meetings three committeemen and two alternates and a delegate to the county meeting will be named. All farmers who participated in the 1939 farm program or will participate in the 1940 program may vote in the township meetings.

The date for the county meeting has not been set. It will be held shortly after the township meetings.

The present members of the committee are John Boggs, West
Union Street, Wilbur Brinker,
Walnut Township, and Dewey
Downs, Darby Township. Mr.
Boggs has been president of the county committee since it was organized in 1934. Mr. Matthes, secretary, is named by the county committee.

friends that the British Government is assured Italy will remain neutral despite the overwhelming
Nazi-Soviet victory in Poland.

This advice, however, is in contrast with diplomatic dispatches received from Rome and Berlin, all pointing to the probability that Mussolini will be forced to come into the fray—and on the side of Germany.

So long as Hitler was concerned only with Poland, it was much better from his viewpoint to have Italy neutral. This localized the fighting and made it more plausible to propose an early peace.

But with the Polish campaign about finished, and Germany ready to concentrate on the Western Front, it suits Hitler better to have the French army divided between the German and Italian borders. And if Mussolini, by coming into the war, can deflect only 200 percent of the French troops from the Western Front, he will perform an important service for his Axis partner.

NOTE—At present the French have African Negro troops on the Italian border awaiting a chance to avenge Mussolini's rape of Ethiopia. But with Germany concentrating on the Western Front, the French advance across the Alps is not going to be the walkway
once expected.

COWBOY JUSTICE

Scrappy Supreme Court Justice
William Douglas has been in a lot of tight fixes in his life, but never in a tougher one than as guest of honor at the Baker, Ore.,
rodeo this summer.

While visiting relatives in Baker he was persuaded to lead the parade that opened the show, and before he knew it found himself attired in flaring leather chaps, red silk shirt and a ten-gallon hat, astride a cow pony. But the horse was docile and after the first few uneasy moments Douglas had a grand time—until the procession nearly the exit of the arena.

There the rough riding stunts were staged. A rodeo official riding beside him leaned over and whispered, "When we get to that post it's the custom to clap our spurs into the horses and gallop break-neck through the gates. It's a lot of fun and everybody loves it."

"Brother," replied Douglas, "it may have been the custom in the past and everybody may love it, but this time we're walking out of here. I don't gallop. I'm glad to stay on this horse at a walk."

But Douglas galloped anyway.

Drivers' license headquarters had its best sales day Saturday since the sale start Tuesday, September 5. The present week will likely be a very busy one, next Saturday being the last day for the legal use of the old licenses.

And last days, reminds us that this coming Thursday, the 28th, is the last day on which candidates who filed by petition for a township or village office can withdraw their names from appearing on the legally printed ballot. Up to this date we are told Ashville
has two withdrawals: Desmer Spangler from the Public Af-from Council. This yet leaves five upon the Public Affairs Board:

Taylor Brintlinger, Grover Cline,
O. W. Willis, Russell Hoover and Clarence Berry with three to elect. And upon the Council list, eight: S. C. Allison, E. L. Run-

T. R. Acord, L. B. Dailey. Six will

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: We have seeded our lawn for two successive seasons but each time after coming up, the grass has died out. Would you recommend that we try sodding instead?

ANSWER: From your description, it is apparent that you have been seeding on the subsoil out of your cellar, so I do not believe you would find sod would be any more satisfactory than seeding. After all, a good lawn must have good soil on which to grow. You will find it necessary either to have four or five inches of good top soil put on your yard or, if you do not wish small cottage and wish to plant some trees. I feel that the ordinary shade trees such as elms and maples are too large. Can you suggest some smaller ones?

ANSWER: Some of the smaller trees that you might be able to use are the golden rain-tree (Koelreuteria), English maple, laurel-leaf willow, the redbud, the flowering dogwood, or even some of the flowering crabs.

QUESTION: There is a grass that has been taking my lawn this summer, crowding out my bluegrass. Can you tell me what it is and what to do for it?

ANSWER: May I suggest you send a specimen of this grass to Prof. C. J. Willard, Agronomy
Department, Ohio State University. He will be glad to identify it and give you recommendations for its control.

QUESTION: I have decided to plant evergreens in front of our home. Since it faces the north and is shaded, I would like to know what evergreens you would recommend.

ANSWER: The most satisfactory evergreens for shade are the Japanese yew and its various varieties, the hemlock, the inkberry (Ilex glabra), the firethorn, the evergreen bittersweet (Euonymus vegetus), and the Oregon holly-grape or Mahonia. I would suggest you refrain from using arbortives or junipers in the shade. Incidentally, if you have some large trees in front of your house, I would recommend that you continue using shrubs since you will have considerable difficulty in getting the evergreens established.

QUESTION: I am very much interested in growing lupines but have never been successful in the past. Can you tell me what I should do to grow them successfully here in Ohio?

ANSWER: I am afraid the only satisfactory advice I could give you is to move up north for although we occasionally find they are successful here in Ohio, it is not due to soil treatment, it is not due to soil inoculation, but rather upon mere chance. I find the only way I can handle them successfully in my own garden is to buy big two-year old plants in the early spring, plant them out, let them bloom and then not feel bad when they gradually die.

QUESTION: My lawn is almost entirely filled with crab grass.
What could I do to get rid of it?

ANSWER: I am afraid this is the wrong time of the year to do very much about it except to cut it to keep it from going to seed.
If your lawn is not too big, I would suggest that next June when the crab grass starts to come up from seed that you take a few minutes a day to pull out the seedlings. Incidentally, I have entirely cleaned my own lawn.

It will take several years.

FARMERS MEET SOON TO ELECT NEW COMMITTEE

All Participating in '40 Of '39 AAA Programs Asked To Ballot

OCT. 2, 3, 4, 5 SELECTED

Each Township To Choose Representatives To Direct Work

Election of members of the Pickaway County Agricultural Conservation Committee, who will direct the 1940 farm program, will be held early in October.

This was announced Monday by Paul Matthes, secretary of the county committee, as he started preparation of a schedule of township meetings for election of township committeemen and delegates to a county meeting for election of the county committee.

Although the schedule has not been completed, Mr. Matthes said the township meetings will be arranged for October 2, 3, 4 and 5. At these township meetings three committeemen and two alternates and a delegate to the county meeting will be named. All farmers who participated in the 1939 farm program or will participate in the 1940 program may vote in the township meetings.

The date for the county meeting has not been set. It will be held shortly after the township meetings.

The present members of the committee are John Boggs, West Union Street, Wilbur Brinker, Walnut Township, and Dewey Downs, Daryl Township. Mr. Boggs has been president of the county committee since it was organized in 1934. Mr. Matthes, secretary, is named by the county committee.

HERMAN McCABE, COUNTY NATIVE, VICTIM OF FALL

Herman E. McCabe, 25, a native of Pickaway County, died Sunday in Grant Hospital, Columbus, of injuries received August 28 when he fell from a scaffold on a building project. Mr. McCabe's head was injured.

The funeral was Monday at 2 p. m. in the Miller Avenue Evangelical Church with burial in Glen Rest.

Mr. McCabe is survived by his widow, Lucille; his mother, Mrs. Ardella McCabe, and a brother, Orville McCabe, both of whom live at 649 South Ogden Avenue, Columbus.

WILLIAM CARTER, NATIVE OF KENTUCKY, DIES AT 26

William Carter, a resident of Adams County, Ky., died Saturday at 4:45 p. m. in St. Anthony's Hospital, Columbus, after a major operation. Mr. Carter, who was 26, had been cutting corn in Jackson Township when he was stricken last Thursday.

The body was prepared for burial by M. S. Rinehart then removed to Adams County for funeral services which will be Tuesday.

Mr. Carter, born July 18, 1913, a son of William and Belvie Payne Carter, is survived by his parents, five brothers and two sisters, all residents of Kentucky.

KIWANIS CLUB TO START COFFEE SHOP MEETINGS

Circleville Kiwanians will meet Monday at 6:30 p. m. in the New American Hotel Coffee Shop where it has been decided to conduct the winter meetings. The club has been meeting at the Country Club during the summer.

John H. Dunlap, Jr., of Williamsport, is in charge of the program for Monday's meeting. It is to deal with agriculture.

Election of officers is scheduled also for Monday evening.

friends that the British Government is assured Italy will remain neutral despite the overwhelming Nazi-Soviet victory in Poland.

This advice, however, is in contrast with diplomatic dispatches received from Rome and Berlin, all pointing to the probability that Mussolini will be forced to come into the fray—and on the side of Germany.

So long as Hitler was concerned only with Poland, it was much better from his viewpoint to have Italy neutral. This localized the fighting and made it more plausible to propose an early peace.

But with the Polish campaign about finished, and Germany ready to concentrate on the Western Front, it suits Hitler better to have the French army divided between the German and Italian borders. And if Mussolini, by coming into the war, can deflect only 200 percent of the French troops from the Western Front, he will perform an important service for his Axis partner.

NOTE—At present the French have African Negro troops on the Italian border awaiting a chance to avenge Mussolini's rape of Ethiopia. But with Germany concentrating on the Western Front, the French advance across the Alps is not going to be the walkway once expected.

COWBOY JUSTICE

Scrappy Supreme Court Justice William Douglas has been in a lot of tight fixes in his life, but never in a tougher one than as guest of honor at the Baker, Ore., rodeo this summer.

While visiting relatives in Baker he was persuaded to lead the parade that opened the show, and before he knew it found himself attired in flaring leather chaps, red silk shirt and a ten-gallon hat, astride a cow pony. But the horse was docile and after the first few uneasy moments Douglas had a grand time—until the procession neared the exit of the arena.

There the rough riding stunts were staged. A rodeo official riding beside him leaned over and whispered, "When we get to that post it's the custom to clap our spurs into the horses and gallop break-neck through the gates. It's a lot of fun and everybody loves it."

"Brother," replied Douglas, "it may have been the custom in the past and everybody may love it, but this time we're walking out of here. I don't gallop. I'm glad to stay on this horse at a walk."

But Douglas galloped anyway.

Drivers' license headquarters had its best sales day Saturday since the sale start Tuesday, September 5. The present week will likely be a very busy one, next Saturday being the last day for the legal use of the old licenses.

And last days, reminds us that this coming Thursday, the 28th, is the last day on which candidates who filed by petition for a township or village office can withdraw their names from appearing on the legally printed ballot. Up to this date we are told Ashville has two withdrawals: Desmer Spangler from the Public Affairs Board and A. W. Graham from Council. This yet leaves five upon the Public Affairs Board: Taylor Brintlinger, Grover Cline, O. W. Wills, Russell Hoover and Clarence Berry with three to elect. And upon the Council list, eight: S. C. Allison, E. L. Runkle, Harold Silbaugh, Clyde Hoover, Arthur Petty, Frank Conrad, T. R. Acord, L. B. Dailey. Six will be chosen.

Ashville With the big success the ladies of Hedges Chapel had with their lunch stand at the Mrs. Malone sale, they are trying it again and will be at the Mrs. Lynch auction near the Stage Pond, this coming Friday, the 29th.

Ashville Noticing that Judge Mell Underwood and his corps of helpers are removing their court out from the Capital City for a few days, and that our former Charles Gussman is yet with him as bailiff, naturally takes us "back there" when Charles was one of the seventeen who have at different periods owned and operated the Ashville newspaper, the beginning in December, 1883.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: We have seeded our lawn for two successive seasons but each time after coming up, the grass has died out. Would you recommend that we try sodding instead?

ANSWER: From your description, it is apparent that you have been seeding on the subsoil out of your cellar, so I do not believe you would find sod would be any more satisfactory than seeding. After all, a good lawn must have good soil on which to grow. You will find it necessary either to have four or five inches of good top soil put on your yard or, if you do not wish small cottage and wish to plant some trees. I feel that the ordinary shade trees such as elms and maples are too large. Can you suggest some smaller ones?

ANSWER: Some of the smaller trees that you might be able to use are the golden rain-tree (Koeleruteria), English maple, laurel-leaf willow, the redbud, the flowering dogwood, or even some of the flowering crabs.

QUESTION: There is a grass that has been taking my lawn this summer, crowding out my bluegrass. Can you tell me what it is and what to do for it?

ANSWER: May I suggest you send a specimen of this grass to Prof. C. J. Willard, Agronomy Department, Ohio State University. He will be glad to identify it and give you recommendations for its control.

QUESTION: I have decided to plant evergreens in front of our home. Since it faces the north and is shaded, I would like to know what evergreens you would recommend.

ANSWER: The most satisfactory evergreens for shade are the Japanese yew and its various varieties, the hemlock, the inkberry (Ilex glabra), the firethorn, the evergreen bittersweet (Euonymus alatus), and the Oregon holly-grape or Mahonia. I would suggest you refrain from using arbutus or junipers in the shade. Incidentally, if you have some large trees in front of your house, I would recommend that you continue using shrubs since you will have considerable difficulty in getting the evergreens established.

QUESTION: I am very much interested in growing lupines but have never been successful in the past. Can you tell me what I

PLEASE BE CA'M

THE most important thing for Congress to do, as it assembles to deal with the foreign trade problem, is to keep its shirt on.

Perhaps it is too much to ask that Capitol Hill shall not erupt and the country be deluged with oratory. But at a time when so much of the civilized world seems to be going to pieces, American statesmen should make a special effort to be calm. The mood is as important as the decision they must make.

They should also, of course, make a special effort to deal directly and wisely with the particular problem which takes them to Washington in this special session. That is, with the proposal to repeal the arms embargo and let export goods of all kinds be sold to anybody who will buy and pay for them and carry them away himself.

Naturally there will be a long argument about that. As matters look now, the embargo will probably be removed and the democracies, who command the sea, will come and get what they need.

BENEVOLENT INVADERS

SAID a joint Soviet-Nazi communication issued when the Russians moved in to help Hitler partition Poland:

"These troops do not pursue any aims which are against the interests of Germany or the U. S. S. R. or against the spirit and letter of the Soviet-German non-aggression pact. The mission of the troops is to bring order and peace to Poland."

That was very sweet of the invaders. But if we remember rightly, there was quite a bit of order and peace in Poland before these well-meaning neighbors began their marching and shooting and looting and burning.

It's hard for Americans to see anything there but the cruelty of Hitler, the heavy hand of Stalin and the destruction of a brave little nation that was doing its best to mind its own business and live a civilized life.

A scientist finds that it's hot enough to boil water in the upper air. There's a good deal of hot air down here, too.

Millions of American housewives, afraid of high prices, rush the stores to buy up provisions and thereby create high prices.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

SENATOR BORAH is the star performer at this extra session of congress. Even before the session's opening the indications had begun to be that he'd lose high fight to maintain unqualified American neutrality in the present world situation. President Roosevelt, demanding modification of the Nye neutrality law hadn't exactly out-argued him, but as the time neared for the lawmakers to convene it had grown pretty apparent that public sentiment favored the presidential side of the case regardless of reasoning, pro or con.

All the same, the Idaho statesman has put up a formidable scrap.

He undoubtedly has more influence with his fellow legislators than any other single individual on Capitol Hill, but not enough to offset the odds against him. He has enough, though, to give the administration an anxious spell of it. He's like a warrior who goes down to a defeat after having piled up tremendous stacks of badly-damaged opponents. Losing, under such circumstances, isn't a bit creditable.

BORAH VS. ROOSEVELT
Senator Borah, as I've said, is the extra session's star performer. I mean to say, he's its star congressional performer. He out-stars any and all others in the ultra-isolationist group and he out-stars any particular figure in the opposition group — on the Hill. Star for star, he doesn't necessarily out-star the president, down in the White House. F. D.'s performance has been excellent. Essentially, it's a contest between him and the Idaho senator.

However, their respective followings have to be taken into consideration. At the last regular session congress certainly was split about 50-50 on the neutrality issue, but even then I surmise that the home folk were strongly anti-Hitler. Today, assuredly, they are much more so. Meanwhile, the senators and representatives have visited their various home states and districts, sopping up the popular reaction. The natural conclusion is that the 50-50 balance has been upset—that the legislators are better disposed than they were toward doing a little thing they can (short of actual war participation) in the direction of sticking it into Adolf.

President Roosevelt has played this just right, from the standpoint of neutrality modification — to the effect that he's for neutrality but can't ask anybody not to have his proper sympathies — he knows what they are.

Senator Borah makes an equally good talker, but it's clear that he's in the minority class. I know plenty of Americans who at least were not outright anti-German in 1914, but who are emphatically so now. Not that they want to get into the war, but they want to be as non-belligerently helpful to the democracies as they can.

THAT NEUTRALITY LAW

Senator Gerald P. Nye invented our present neutrality law. Theoretically, he should be its principal defender. He does defend it competently, but he doesn't defend it with the weight of Senator Borah's gunfire.

If that law had been a "Borah law" it would have been a darned sight more substantial. Nye evolved it out of an investigation of the last war's profiteering. It was a dandy investigation. Nye is one of the best congressional investigators congress ever had. But, somehow, he isn't the ideal sponsor of capitally important new laws. I know why, too; he rates as a "young senator"—immature.

Next to Borah, Senator Hiram Johnson of California was the bird to have fathered that law. Then I'd say, Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, a Democrat. Senator Charles G. Norris would have been grand, but he's a New Dealer.

If there hadn't been an American neutrality law it would have been regarded as a mere oversight — as of no international consequence either way. However, as soon as the act was passed it immediately became apparent that it was pro-German and anti-Anglo-French. If it's repealed, its repeal is sure to be interpreted as pro-democratic and anti-totalitarian—anti-Hitler. We'll be "damned if we do and damned if we don't," as the saying is.

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,
GERMANS HAVE NEW DEVICE.

WASHINGTON—U. S. Intelligence dispatches from Europe's war zones tell of a new and secret device the Germans have developed to muffle the underwater reverberations of their submarines.

This device apparently was the secret of the sinking of the airplane carrier Courageous, one of the worst single blows dealt the British navy in its history.

In the latter part of the first World War, British naval commanders were able to detect submarines about three miles distant, through the use of detectors which caught the sound waves of the submarine's motors. Upon getting this signal, the vessel immediately started zig-zagging and preparing for an attack.

In the case of the Courageous, however, the officer on the bridge got no warning whatsoever. The detector recorded no submarine. First warning was a direct torpedo-hit. The German sub escaped unscathed and back to its base. The British announcement that the sub was "believed" to have been sunk, was just what was stated—"belief."

What this new German device is, the British navy does not know. But they are almost frantic to find out. For the British had counted upon their detectors as a major instrument in combating Germany's undersea war.

MAVERICK VS. CANTOR

Maury Maverick, Mayor of San Antonio, had a row with comedian Eddie Cantor the other day over the question of Communism and free speech. Cantor was in San Antonio when that city was stirred up because Maverick had approved a permit for a Communist meeting in the municipal auditorium.

Maverick had insisted that anyone had a right to speak in the auditorium, and Eddie Cantor, appearing at a local theatre, immediately pounced on the issue and joined the popular outcry against allowing a Communist to speak.

Maverick called him on the telephone to ask if he were not in favor of freedom of speech.

Cantor barked back, "I don't know who you are. I've never heard of you!" "Well," said Maverick with a touch of sarcasm, "you are a great man, and I'm only a humble politician. But you belong to a minority and I do not. When the persecution begins, if it does, you and your race will be the ones to get it in the neck, not me. Then you will be crying out for protection of all sorts, including freedom of speech. And that's what I'm standing for now."

Maverick asked Cantor to include in his harangue a simple statement that he favored freedom of speech. Certain rabbis in San Antonio approached Cantor with the same request, but the comedian's reply was, "That would be like saying I love my mother," and he refused.

No Certain Relief For Sick Headache

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THE examination of several hundred clinic patients with chronic, recurrent headache, I found that two types of headache accounted for at least 75 per cent of all of them. These were, first, the nervous headache, and what is known as migraine, or sick headache.

Some doctors believe that "migraine" is a myth. But I believe migraine is just as definite a disease entity as typhoid fever.

Ask the man who owns one. He is likely to call it "my headache." It belongs to him, is individual to him. He knows when it is about to arrive. He may have other headaches, just as anybody may, but those are not like the ancient enemy. "My headache" is characteristic.

"Sick Headache"
It is often called sick headache because it is accompanied by digestive upsets—nausea almost invariably, vomiting often, but most likely a feeling of tightness as if all the digestive organs had gone on strike. When the feeling of tightness in the bowel region begins to let up, the headache is over.

Some persons have the abdominal symptoms without the headache. These people are subject to what they call bilious spells, which is just as good a name for them as anything.

Migraine headache is described as being on one side of the head only—hemicrania—though I have never seen this symptom very prominently to the fore. Flashes before the eyes and queer feelings usually precede the headache, so that the victim is aware of the approach of his "enemy." One friend of mine has a deep sleep and lovely dreams the night before his attack.

The attacks begin usually in late childhood and come on about once a month, or once a fortnight, for 20 or 30 years, passing away at the time of the change of life.

No Certain Relief

As far as treatment is concerned, we are not able to say definitely that anything is certain for relief. Most patients try everything once, and then resign themselves to the inevitable and fight it with lying down in a dark room, with wet cloths on the forehead, and phenacetin if they can keep it down. Many find that if, in the early stages of the superhuman efforts, they can get the bowels to move and then keep down several tablets of aspirin, they will have a mild attack.

The theory has got about lately that migraine is a form of allergy. I am afraid I see little sense to this, and as a warning against undue optimism I quote from Vaughn's fine book on allergy: "In the good results in the poor results of treatment, non-allergic factors were responsible for the individual attack with almost equal frequency (as allergic foods)." However, some cases of headache resembling migraine are found due to foods, so that it is worth trying to make a diagnosis of allergic response in any headache.

Shadow Over Hill House

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
Sally Gordon is at Hill House for a vacation, at the instigation of her friend, Rhoda. At Hill House Sally meets Mrs. Peake, the proprietor, her son, Neal, and Rhoda.

CHAPTER THREE
"EVEN a hurricane would have difficulty moving anything as cumbersome and weighty as Miss Ivy's spite fence," I returned lightly. Then added: "Have you found out any more about it, Rhoda?"

"The spite fence? Not a word. It's never mentioned here so far as I know. The first year I came here a boarder told me that Miss Ivy and Mrs. Peake are sisters, that they quarreled and that Miss Ivy built the spite fence. It had been standing then for four years, and I've been here six summers, so she must have built it ten years ago. That's all I know."

"It's a funny situation," I said musingly. "I'd like to know the truth about it."

"So would I," agreed Rhoda, "but we probably never will. Hurry, Sally, there's the dinner gong."

I gave a last pat to my hair and we went out to the lounge. There were seven strangers there, but Rhoda's introductions were so hurried and sketchy that it was not until we were seated around the table in the dining wing that I began to attach names to individuals.

Mrs. Peake presided over the table and Chloe served deftly. The food was delicious and, naturally, I ate a great deal more than I intended.

Josephine Peake, daughter of our landlady (Mrs. Peake is really Neal's and Josie's stepmother, although no own mother and children can be more devoted) is a perfect darling. She sat next to me at dinner and we were friends from our first words.

She is two years younger than I, twenty-three, small and dainty, with silky, wavy brown hair, laughing brown eyes, a pert expression and a nimble tongue which kept the table in a gale of laughter. She has the same striking good looks that Neal has, but in her they are more delicate, truly feminine. Her coloring is like his and their voices are almost identical, hers being very deep for a woman and his higher than is usual in a man.

"I'm so glad you came," Josie said heartily as soon as we were served. "Rhoda's told us so much about you that I feel as though we are old friends."

Across the table Neal was paying assiduous attention to a striking looking woman. He caught Josie's words and glanced over with a smiling bow at me and a gay: "As we're going to be."

The woman by his side, Coral Easton, threw me a nasty sideways look as Neal spoke. She didn't like him, that was evident, but she liked Neal's remark still less.

No one can deny that Coral is attractive. She has great black eyes fringed with the longest, blackest eyelashes in captivity. Satiny black hair massed high on her head in an array of curls, an olive complexion and enough lipstick to stock a theatrical dressing room give her an exotic appearance. She is older than Neal, Middle thirty is my guess at her age, and Neal is only twenty-six. He is apparently devoted to her, hangs upon her words and waits upon her by inches. But I wonder just how good a wife she would make for a struggling young doctor. This is Neal's first year as a hospital intern, and it would take more than his salary to pay her hairdresser's bill alone.

"Didn't I see Miss Ivy Newcomb shooing you away from her place?" demanded Pauline Rutherford snippily. She didn't like Neal's remark to me any better than Coral did. Whenever Neal speaks she chips in with what she intends to be a bright remark, but which more often is plain stupid or silly.

Poor Pauline. She is as much in love with Neal as he appears to be with Coral; but she, at twenty, hasn't the finished technique of the older, more sophisticated woman. Her idea of the way to attract a man is to chase him about every moment possible and be as fresh as wet paint. As far as I can judge, Neal doesn't know she is on earth. She is cute looking with five-avay ing race—says an historian. Shucks, we knew that ever since we read that they have 40 different political parties.

The burnt child which couldn't avoid the fire has now grown up and continues to buy tickets in a football pool.

America is the land of opportunity where everyone gets a second chance to make good—everyone, except a football coach.

Now that the gridiron season is rapidly approaching we are again reminded that the nicest thing about the All-American football team is that the candidates for it never make political speeches.

Being neutral in a war-mad Europe is just like being in a ringside seat at a wild and woolly wrestling match. You never know when the fight will land in your own lap.

light brown hair, greenish gray eyes and an eternal cigaret which mucks up her fingers and peppers her dresses with large and small burns. Why on earth her brother doesn't prohibit them or, at least, ration her to a reasonable number is beyond me.

I like to smoke, and have for years. But I don't lounge around with a cigaret dangling from the corner of my mouth and my eyes squinted up into pin points to avoid the smoke.

In plain words, I think Pauline Rutherford is a spoiled brat, ruined by the tomfool pampering of her mother and brother Paul, who is in the hospital with Neal. Perhaps I'm being too hard on the girl. There may be things about her which are very fine and at twenty-one are not as yet fully matured.

I blame Mrs. Rutherford for her daughter's faults. She is one of those women whose children are the sun, moon and stars of their existence. I suppose most children are that to their mothers, but thank goodness, the majority of mothers do not show their feelings in such a silly way. Mrs. Rutherford fairly beams if Pauline makes the simplest wisecrack and when Paul speaks she hangs upon his words as though he were elucidating the lore of the sages.

I thought Pauline showed bad taste, to say the least, to make such a remark at Mrs. Peake's table. I would have passed it over in the silence it deserved, but every-one stopped eating to stare at me. Thus forced to make some reply, I commented casually:

"I wasn't quite sure if I were on the right track, so stopped to get my bearings."

Mrs. Peake leaned forward, an anxious expression on her pleasant face.

"I do hope she wasn't—er—unpleasant, Miss Gordon," she murmured in a pained voice.

"Oh, no, indeed," I returned lightly, but I knew I hadn't fooled those wise eyes looking into mine.

"Is this your first visit to Winnetka?" inquired an elderly man from the other end of the table.

I thought he was trying to draw the conversation away from such a dynamic subject and I responded with a peppy account of my day's drive, omitting my getting lost. For a few moments the conversation flowed in general channels and I was congratulating myself that the delicate subject was forgotten when Mrs. Rutherford spoke:

"Oh, Mrs. Peake," she simpered, "I forgot to tell you, there was someone prowling around our cottage last night."

Once more everyone stopped eating to stare at the speaker.

"Someone prowling around our cottage," repeated Neal in a tone which betrayed his lack of belief in the statement. "What time was that, Mrs. Rutherford?"

"Just twenty minutes of three. I snapped on the light and looked at my clock."

"You didn't say anything about it this morning, mother," Dr. Paul's voice held a skeptical note.

"I forgot it in the hurry of your getting away for that ride down the cape," replied Mrs. Rutherford. "It just came to my mind now."

"Are you sure it wasn't a dog, Mrs. Rutherford?" asked Mrs. Peake. She was plainly uneasy by the other's flat assertion.

"I am positive it was not. I don't know what woke me, but I heard footsteps close to my window. Then they seemed to go toward the fence, the spite fence," she continued. "You know our cottage is close beside it."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Peake quietly. "I listened, wondering who could be outside, for it seemed to me it must be almost morning. When the footsteps came back by my window, I pulled on the bed light to look at my clock. The instant my light flashed on, the footsteps beyond listening, but I didn't hear any more and, finally, dropped off to sleep again."

"It's peculiar that I didn't hear any of this," Dr. Paul said. "I'm a light sleeper."

"Or I," chimed in Pauline. "But you're both on the other side of the hall. The living room and my bedroom are on the fence side."

"That is true," assented Mrs. Peake. "Would you like to move into the house? If you are at all nervous, I will have your things changed after dinner."

"Well—" Mrs. Rutherford didn't seem to know whether she wanted to exchange her cottage for a room in the main house or not.

"Nonsense, mother," broke in Paul. "I'll change rooms with you if you wish, but there's nothing for you to be nervous about. It probably was some casual prowler. Possibly someone who wanted a good look at the spite fence and didn't dare come into the grounds during the day. It was bright moonlight last night."

"Not around three o'clock it wasn't," asserted Rhoda. "I looked out the window at quarter of three and it was pitch black then."

"What in the world were you looking for at that hour?" demanded Duncan, surprisedly.

For Monday, September 25

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a fairly lively and progressive state of affairs, both old and new. This may involve some sudden and disruptive change, which at first may be startling. But since there are definite benefits shown at the hands of elders, possibly through a gift, trust or bequest, the denouement may be a very happy one. Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a sudden and surprising change. At first it may seem to have the force of catastrophe or disaster, but in the long run there is promise of happiness as there are auguries of inheritance.

PLEASE BE CA'M

THE most important thing for Congress to do, as it assembles to deal with the foreign trade problem, is to keep its shirt on.

Perhaps it is too much to ask that Capitol Hill shall not erupt and the country be deluged with oratory. But at a time when so much of the civilized world seems to be going to pieces, American statesmen should make a special effort to be calm. The mood is as important as the decision they must make.

They should also, of course, make a special effort to deal directly and wisely with the particular problem which takes them to Washington in this special session. That is, with the proposal to repeal the arms embargo and let export goods of all kinds be sold to anybody who will buy and pay for them and carry them away himself.

Naturally there will be a long argument about that. As matters look now, the embargo will probably be removed and the democracies, who command the sea, will come and get what they need.

BENEVOLENT INVADERS

SAID a joint Soviet-Nazi communication issued when the Russians moved in to help Hitler partition Poland:

"These troops do not pursue any aims which are against the interests of Germany or the U. S. S. R. or against the spirit and letter of the Soviet-German non-aggression pact. The mission of the troops is to bring order and peace to Poland."

That was very sweet of the invaders.
But if we remember rightly, there was quite a bit of order and peace in Poland before these well-meaning neighbors began their marching and shooting and looting and burning.

It's hard for Americans to see anything there but the cruelty of Hitler, the heavy hand of Stalin and the destruction of a brave little nation that was doing its best to mind its own business and live a civilized life.

A scientist finds that it's hot enough to boil water in the upper air. There's a good deal of hot air down here, too.

Millions of American housewives, afraid of high prices, rush the stores to buy up provisions and thereby create high prices.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

SENATOR BORAH is the star performer at this extra session of congress. Even before the session's opening the indications had begun to be that he'd lose high fight to maintain unqualified American neutrality in the present world situation. President Roosevelt, demanding modification of the Nye neutrality law hadn't exactly out-argued him, but as the time neared for the lawmakers to convene it had grown pretty apparent that public sentiment favored the presidential side of the case regardless of reasoning, pro or con.

All the same, the Idaho statesman has put up a formidable scrap.

He undoubtedly has more influence with his fellow legislators than any other single individual on Capitol Hill, but not enough to offset the odds against him. He has enough, though, to give the administration an anxious spell of it. He's like a warrior who goes down to a defeat after having piled up tremendous stacks of badly-damaged opponents. Losing, under such circumstances, isn't a bit discreditable.

BORAH VS. ROOSEVELT

Senator Borah, as I've said, is the extra session's star performer. I mean to say, he's its star congressional performer. He outstars any and all others in the ultra-isolationist group and he outstars any particular figure in the opposition group — on the Hill. Star for star, he doesn't necessarily out-star the president, down in the White House. F. D.'s performance has been excellent. Essentially, it's a contest between him and the Idaho senator.

However, their respective followings have to be taken into consideration.

At the last regular session congress certainly was split about 50-50 on the neutrality issue, but even then I surmise that the home folk were strongly anti-Hitler. Today, assuredly, they are much more so. Meanwhile, the senators and representatives have visited their various home states and districts, sopping up the popular reaction. The natural conclusion is that the 50-50 balance has been upset—that the legislators are better disposed than they were toward doing any little thing they can (short of actual war participation) in the direction of sticking it into Adolf.

President Roosevelt has played this just right, from the standpoint of neutrality modification — to the effect that he's for neutrality but can't ask anybody not to have his proper sympathies — he knows what they are.

Senator Borah makes an equally good talker, but it's clear that he's in the minority class. I know plenty of Americans who at least were not outright anti-German in 1914, but who are emphatically so now. Not that they want to get into the war, but they want to be as non-belligerently helpful to the democracies as they can.

THAT NEUTRALITY LAW

Senator Gerald P. Nye invented our present neutrality law. Theoretically, he should be its principal defender. He does defend it competently, but he doesn't defend it with the weight of Senator Borah's gunfire.

If that law had been a "Borah law" it would have been a darned sight more substantial. Nye evolved it out of an investigation of the last war's profiteering. It was a dandy investigation. Nye is one of the best congressional investigators congress ever had. But, somehow, he isn't the ideal sponsor of capitally important new laws. I know why, too; he rates as a "young senator"—immature.

Next to Borah, Senator Hiram Johnson of California was the bird to have fathered that law. Then I'd say, Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, a Democrat. Senator Charles G. Norris would have been grand, but he's a New Dealer.

If there hadn't been an American neutrality law it would have been regarded as a mere oversight — as of no international consequence either way.

However, as soon as the act was passed it immediately became apparent that it was pro-German and anti-Anglo-French. If it's re-pealed, its repeal is sure to be interpreted as pro-democratic and anti-totalitarian—anti-Hitler.

We'll be "damned if we do and damned if we don't," as the saying is.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

GERMANS HAVE NEW DEVICE

WASHINGTON—U. S. Intelligence dispatches from Europe's war zones tell of a new and secret device the Germans have developed to muffle the underwater reverberations of their submarines.

This device apparently was the secret of the sinking of the airplane carrier Courageous, one of the worst single blows dealt the British navy in its history.

In the latter part of the first World War, British naval commanders were able to detect submarines about three miles distant, through the use of detectors which caught the sound waves of the submarine's motors. Upon getting this signal, the vessel immediately started zig-zagging and preparing for an attack.

In the case of the Courageous, however, the officer on the bridge got no warning whatsoever. The detector recorded no submarine. First warning was a direct torpedo hit. The German sub escaped unscathed and back to its base. The British announcement that the sub was "believed" to have been sunk, was just what was stated—"belief".

What this new German device is, the British navy does not know. But they are almost frantic to find out. For the British had counted upon their detectors as a major instrument in combating Germany's undersea war.

MAVERICK VS. CANTOR

Maury Maverick, Mayor of San Antonio, had a row with comedian Eddie Cantor the other day over the question of Communism and free speech. Cantor was in San Antonio when that city was stirred up because Maverick had approved a permit for a Communist meeting in the municipal auditorium.

Maverick had insisted that anyone had a right to speak in the auditorium, and Eddie Cantor, appearing at a local theatre, immediately pounced on the issue and joined the popular outcry against allowing a Communist to speak.

Maverick called him on the telephone to ask if he were not in favor of freedom of speech.

Cantor barked back, "I don't know who you are. I've never heard of you!"

"Well," said Maverick with a touch of sarcasm, "you are a great man, and I'm only a humble politician. But you belong to a minority and I do not. When the persecution begins, if it does, you and your race will be the ones to get it in the neck, not me. Then you will be crying out for protection of all sorts, including freedom of speech. And that's what I'm standing for now."

Maverick asked Cantor to include in his harangue a simple statement that he favored freedom of speech. Certain rabbis in San Antonio approached Cantor with the same request, but the comedian's reply was, "That would be like saying I love my mother," and he refused.

DIET AND HEALTH

No Certain Relief For Sick Headache

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THE examination of several hundred clinic patients with chronic, recurrent headache, I found that two types of headache accounted for at least 75 per cent of all of them. These were, first, the nervous headache, and what is known as migraine, or sick headache.

Some doctors believe that "migraine" is a myth. But I believe mi-

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

graine is just as definite a disease entity as typhoid fever.

Ask the man who owns one. He is likely to call it "my headache." It belongs to him, is individual to him. He knows when it is about to arrive. He may have other headaches, just as anybody may, but those are not like the ancient enemy. "My headache" is characteristic.

"Sick Headache"

It is often called sick headache because it is accompanied by digestive upsets—nausea almost invariably, vomiting often, but most likely a feeling of tightness as if all the digestive organs had gone on strike. When the feeling of tightness in the bowel region begins to let up, the headache is over.

Some persons have the abdominal symptoms without the headache. These people are subject to what they call bilious spells, which is just as good a name for them as anything.

Migraine headache is described as being on one side of the head only—hemispheric—though I have never seen this symptom very prominently to the fore. Flashes before the eyes and queer feelings usually precede the headache, so that the victim is aware of the approach of his "enemy." One friend of mine has a deep sleep and lovely dreams the night before his attack.

The attacks begin usually in late childhood and come on about once a month, or once a fortnight, for 20 or 30 years, passing away at the time of the change of life.

No Certain Relief

As far as treatment is concerned, we are not able to say definitely that anything is certain for relief. Most patients try everything once, and then resign themselves to the inevitable and fight it with lying down in a dark room, with wet cloths on the forehead, and phenacetin if they can keep it down. Many find that if, in the early stages, by superhuman efforts, they can get the bowels to move and then keep down several tablets of aspirin, they will have a mild attack.

The theory has got about lately that migraine is a form of allergy. I am afraid I see little sense to this, and as a warning against undue optimism I quote from Vaughn's fine book on allergy: "In the good results as in the poor results of treatment, non-allergic factors were responsible for the individual attack with almost equal frequency (as allergic foods)." However, some cases of headache resembling migraine are found due to foods, so that it is worth trying to make a diagnosis of allergic response in any headache.

But I wonder just how good a wife she would make for a struggling young doctor. This is Neal's first year as a hospital interne, and it would take more than his salary to pay her hairdresser's bill alone.

"Didn't I see Miss Ivy Newcomb shooing you away from her place?" demanded Pauline Rutherford snippily. She didn't like Neal's remark to me any better than Coral did. Whenever Neal speaks she chips in with what she intends to be a bright remark, but which more often is plain stupid or silly.

Poor Pauline. She is as much in love with Neal as he appears to be with Coral; but she, at twenty, hasn't the finished technique of the older, more sophisticated woman. Her idea of the way to attract a man is to chase him about every moment possible and be as fresh as wet paint. As far as I can judge, Neal doesn't know she is on earth. She is cute looking with fly-away hair—says an historian. Shucks, we knew that ever since we read that they have 40 different political parties.

The burnt child which couldn't avoid the fire has now grown up and continues to buy tickets in a football pool.

America is the land of opportunity where everyone gets a second chance to make good—everyone, except a football coach.

Now that the gridiron season is rapidly approaching we are again reminded that the nicest thing about the All-American football team is that the candidates for it never make political speeches.

Being neutral in a war-mad Europe is just like being in a ringside seat at a wild and woolly wrestling match. You never know when the fight will land in your own lap.

light brown hair, greenish gray eyes and an eternal cigaret which stuck up her fingers and peppers her dresses with large and small burns. Why on earth her brother doesn't prohibit them or, at least, ration her to a reasonable number is beyond me.

I like to smoke, and have for years. But I don't lounge around with a cigaret dangling from the corner of my mouth and my eyes squinted up into pin points to avoid the smoke.

In plain words, I think Pauline Rutherford is a spoiled brat, ruined by the tomfool pampering of her mother and brother Paul, who is in the hospital with Neal. Perhaps I'm being too hard on the girl. There may be things about her which are very fine and at twenty-one are not as yet fully matured.

I blame Mrs. Rutherford for her daughter's faults. She is one of those women whose children are the sun, moon and stars of their existence. I suppose most children are that to their mothers, but, thank goodness, the majority of mothers do not show their feelings in such a silly way. Mrs. Rutherford fairly beams if Pauline makes the simplest wisecrack and when Paul speaks she hangs upon his words as though he were elucidating the lore of the sages.

I thought Pauline showed bad taste, to say the least, to make such a remark at Mrs. Peake's table. I would have passed it over in the silence it deserved, but every one stopped eating to stare at me. Thus forced to make some reply, I commented casually:

"I wasn't quite sure if I were on the right track, so stopped to get my bearings."

Mrs. Peake leaned forward, an anxious expression on her pleasant face.

"I do hope she wasn't—er—unpleasant, Miss Gordon," she murmured in a pained voice.

"Oh, no, indeed," I returned lightly, but I knew I hadn't fooled those wise eyes looking into mine.

"Is this your first visit to Winnetka?" I inquired an elderly man from the other end of the table.

I thought he was trying to draw the conversation away from such a dynamic subject and I responded with a peppy account of my day's drive, omitting my getting lost. For a few moments the conversation flowed in general channels and I was congratulating myself that the delicate subject was forgotten when Mrs. Rutherford spoke:

Once more everyone stopped eating to stare at the speaker.

"Someone prowling around your cottage," repeated Neal in a tone which betrayed his lack of belief in the statement. "What time was that, Mrs. Rutherford?"

"Just twenty minutes of three. I snapped on the light and looked at my clock."

"You didn't say anything about it this morning, mother," Dr. Paul's voice held a skeptical note.

"I forgot it in the hurry of your getting away for that ride down the cape," replied Mrs. Rutherford. "It just came to my mind now."

"Are you sure it wasn't a dog, Mrs. Rutherford?" asked Mrs. Peake. She was plainly uneasy by the other's flat assertion.

"I am positive it was not. I don't know what waked me, but I heard footsteps close to my window. Then they seemed to go toward the fence, the spite fence," she continued. "You know our cottage is close beside it."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Peake quietly. "I listened, wondering who could be outside, for it seemed to me it must be almost morning. When the footsteps came back by my window, I pulled on the bed light to look at my clock. The instant my light flashed on, the footsteps began to run. I lay for some time listening, but I didn't hear any more and, finally, dropped off to sleep again."

"It's peculiar that I didn't hear any of this," Dr. Paul said. "I'm a light sleeper."

"But you're both on the other side of the hall. The living room and my bedroom are on the fence side."

"That is true," assented Mrs. Peake. "Would you like to move into the house? If you are all nervous, I will have your things changed after dinner."

"Well—" Mrs. Rutherford didn't seem to know whether she wanted to exchange her cottage for a room in the main house or not.

"Nonsense, mother," broke in Paul. "I'll change rooms with you if you wish, but there's nothing for you to be nervous about. It probably was some casual prowler. Possibly someone who wanted a good look at the spite fence and didn't dare come into the grounds during the day. It was bright moonlight last night."

"Not around three o'clock it wasn't," asserted Rhoda. "I looked out the window at quarter of three and it was pitch black then."

"What in the world were you looking for at that hour?" demanded Duncan, surprisedly.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, September 25

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a fairly lively and progressive state of affairs, both old and new. This may involve some sudden and disruptive change, which at first may be startling. But since there are definite benefits shown at the hands of elders, possibly through a gift, trust or bequest, the denouement may be a very happy one.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a sudden and surprising change. At first it may seem to have the force of catastrophe or disaster, but in the long run there is promise of happiness as there are auguries of inheritance, gifts or other tokens of esteem, affection or preferment from elders.

A child born on this day may have many traits and abilities of a sturdy and steadfast quality, making it the beneficiary of its elders or other kindly companions.

Zahn Residence In
Mt. Sterling Scene
Of Gathering

When the Colonel William Ball Chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists met Saturday in the home of Mrs. John F. Zahn of Mt. Sterling twelve members were seated at the flower centered table for the cooperative luncheon served at noon.

Mrs. O. S. Harman of Belle Center read an interesting paper on "Jamestown, the Birthplace of the United States", during the program hour of the afternoon session.

Mrs. Orion King, regent, opened the meeting in the ritualistic form, assisted by Mrs. Oscar Finley and Mrs. Zahn.

Plans were made for a card party at the home of Mrs. King, West High Street, to be Friday, November 10.

The next regular session of the chapter has been postponed until Saturday, October 28. Owing to illness in the home of Mrs. Robert Trimble of Mt. Sterling, the meeting will be in the home of Miss Frances Baldwin, Miss Florence Alkire reading the paper on "Early American Glass" which was to have been presented by Mrs. Trimble.

The members voted on the names of two new members during the business hour.

Plans were completed for a memorial service for the late Mrs. Julia Beall at the next meeting.

It was voted to donate $5 to the student aid loan committee of which Mrs. King is state chairman.

Atlanta PTA
The Atlanta Parent-Teacher Association met recently in the school auditorium with approximately 125 members present for the first meeting of the school year.

Mrs. Anna Skidner, president, was in charge and the session opened with a prayer by the Rev. V. C. Stump. Minutes of the last meeting, read by Mrs. Cyril Moore, secretary pro tem, were accepted and approved.

Leslie Canup, superintendent of the school, discussed the importance of harmonious cooperation between the parents, teachers and the entire community. He also spoke of ways and means of making money for the organization. Mrs. Skinner appointed a committee, comprised of Ward Dean, Wendell Evans and Miss Betty Raup, to direct the plans for the annual Halloween party which is sponsored by the PTA. A short talk was made by the Rev. Mr. Stump and all teachers were presented by Mr. Canup.

After the business session, the program committee, Mrs. Wendell Evans, chairman, Mrs. Albert Tarbill and Miss Phyllis Ater, presented the program which opened with the songs, "School Bell" and "My Pony" by Joan Turner. The program continued with the reading, "The Inventor's Wife," Mary Anise Bush; piano solo, "Spanish Gypsy Dance," by Dent Mowery, Jean Creighton; talk by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools; a vocal duet, "O Moment That I Bless," Janet Kirk and John Peck.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by the social committee including Mrs. Omar Creighton, chairman, Mrs. Albert Skinner, Mrs. Herbert Bowsher, Mrs. Harley Speakman, Mrs. James Hooks and Mrs. Wendell Evans.

PTA meetings throughout the school year will be held regularly on the third Thursday of each month at 8 p. m.

Officers of the organization are Mrs. Anna Skinner, president; Mrs. Daisy Stinson, vice president; Miss Phyllis Ater, secretary and Mrs. Ulen McGhee, treasurer.

Ludwigs Win Tourney
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ludwig of Chillicothe won a two-ball mixed foursome golf tournament conducted Sunday at the Pickaway Country Club with 16 couples participating. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig combined scores of 41 and 40 which was reduced to a net of 75 by their handicap of six.

Circleville and Chillicothe couples participated in the tournament, one of the highlights of the waning golfing season. Another two-ball mixed foursome is

Beech branches for winter decoration

Beech leaves can be preserved so that they last without drying up and becoming shriveled. The secret of success is to place the beech branches in glycerine as soon as possible after they are picked.

Pure glycerine should be used. A little water may be added, but only enough to make the glycerine less thick and sticky—about one part of water to four parts glycerine.

First split the stems of the beech branches a few inches up, as shown in the Garden-Graph. Then place the branches in a jar of the liquid so that the leaves become silky, and will remain looking natural for years without being in water. Occasional dusting and shaking of the branches when they are used for house decoration is the only attention they require.

Atlanta PTA
The Atlanta Parent-Teacher Association met recently in the school auditorium with approximately 125 members present for the first meeting of the school year.

Mrs. Anna Skinner, president, was in charge and the session opened with a prayer by the Rev. V. C. Stump. Minutes of the last meeting, read by Mrs. Cyril Moore, secretary pro tem, were accepted and approved.

Leslie Canup, superintendent of the school, discussed the importance of harmonious cooperation between the parents, teachers and the entire community. He also spoke of ways and means of making money for the organization. Mrs. Skinner appointed a committee, comprised of Ward Dean, Wendell Evans and Miss Betty Raup, to direct the plans for the annual Halloween party which is sponsored by the PTA. A short talk was made by the Rev. Mr. Stump and all teachers were presented by Mr. Canup.

After the business session, the program committee, Mrs. Wendell Evans, chairman, Mrs. Albert Tarbill and Miss Phyllis Ater, presented the program which opened with the songs, "School Bell" and "My Pony" by Joan Turner. The program continued with the reading, "The Inventor's Wife," Mary Anise Bush; piano solo, "Spanish Gypsy Dance," by Dent Mowery, Jean Creighton; talk by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools; a vocal duet, "O Moment That I Bless," Janet Kirk and John Peck.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by the social committee including Mrs. Omar Creighton, chairman, Mrs. Albert Skinner, Mrs. Herbert Bowsher, Mrs. Harley Speakman, Mrs. James Hooks and Mrs. Wendell Evans.

PTA meetings throughout the school year will be held regularly on the third Thursday of each month at 8 p. m.

Officers of the organization are Mrs. Anna Skinner, president; Mrs. Daisy Stinson, vice president; Miss Phyllis Ater, secretary and Mrs. Ulen McGhee, treasurer.

Ludwigs Win Tourney

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ludwig of Chillicothe won a two-ball mixed foursome golf tournament conducted Sunday at the Pickaway Country Club with 16 couples participating. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig combined scores of 41 and 40 which was reduced to a net of 75 by their handicap of six.

Circleville and Chillicothe couples participated in the tournament, one of the highlights of the waning golfing season. Another two-ball mixed foursome is

Beech branches for winter decoration

Beech leaves can be preserved so that they last without drying up and becoming shriveled. The secret of success is to place the beech branches in glycerine as soon as possible after they are picked.

Pure glycerine should be used. A little water may be added, but only enough to make the glycerine less thick and sticky—about one part of water to four parts glycerine.

First split the stems of the beech branches a few inches up, as shown in the Garden-Graph. Then place the branches in a jar of the liquid so that the leaves become silky, and will remain looking natural for years without being in water. Occasional dusting and shaking of the branches when they are used for house decoration is the only attention they require.

Columbus were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Pontius of North Court Street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harry Crowe of Duval were Saturday guests of Mrs. Mercedes Phillips of South Court Street.

Ohio Grid Season Opens In Stride Next Week End

COLUMBUS, Sept. 25—Football and tumbling leaves clogged the pungent autumn atmosphere today as Ohio college teams shifted into high gear preparing for a heavy week end slate involving 22 games, including 12 intersectional battles and four Ohio Conference tilts.

On every front, squads dug in for red hot practice sessions. Re-strainment was cast aside as every play in the book and some new ones too were diligently rehearsed. Those eleven which have tasted action were drilled in departments where glaring errors were apparent. ## DOYLE FIGURES YANKS 3 TO 1 TO WIN SERIES

By Pat Robinson
NEW YORK, Sept. 25 — Old Jack Doyle, the Broadway betting oracle, who has installed the American League a 3 to 1 choice in his book on the World Series, bases his odds on "mileage."

"This current crop of Yanks," he declares Jack, "gets more mileage out of a gallon of gas than any team I ever saw."

By that Jack means the Yanks score more on fewer hits than any other club.

"Just look at their records and you'll see what I mean," says Jack. "The Yanks hit for distance. From top to bottom they are a home run threat any time one of them steps to the plate. They're all long ball hitters."

"Ever notice how often the other team outbats the Yanks? Very often. But you'll notice that the Yanks make the most runs even when they're outbatted."

"No three hits for a run for them. If one of them gets on base the next hitter is liable to knock it a country mile. Two runs. They've got power all down the line."

"Don't pay any attention to their batting averages although you'll find five of them hitting over .300 at that. Take a look at their runs batted in and you'll see what I mean by mileage."

So we took a look at the averages including Saturday's game and discovered some interesting facts.

For instance, four Yanks who follow each other in the batting order—DiMaggio, Dickey, Selkirk and Gordon—will wind up the season with more than 100 runs driven in apiece.

You may judge how good this record is when you discover that only four men in the whole National League—Mize, Dickey, Medwick, McCormick and Camilli—will drive in more than 100 runs for the season.

The starting National League pitcher in the World Series will find no breathing spell anywhere in the Yankee batting order.

Even the Yankee pitchers are pretty fair hitters in their own right.

About This And That In Many Sports

Practice sessions that will stress development of a power attack are in the offing for Circleville's gridiron warriors this week. . . .

With exception of some running on punt and pass plays and ground gained on aerials the Tiger offensive against West Jeff didn't amount to much. . . . When the line opened holes the backs were too late getting there; when the backs were on time there were no holes, just a case of failure to develop a happy medium. . . . Carl Eby, moved from the third to the first team in one night because of his driving ability into the line, wasn't given the leather once for a power play. . . .

Coach Earl Miller of Frankfort is protesting Greenfield's 14-7 victory claiming that Lefty Miller's touchdown run in the last period should really have been scored as a safety for Frankfort. . . .

Knowing Mr. Miller, 't would seem to us that the protest should have been made at the time of the play. . . . The Frankfort coach says that the officials put the ball on the wrong line for the kickoff. . . . Earl Miller is the coach who told Assistant Coach Tom Armstrong of the Tiger school after last year's 0-0 draw that he taught his boys how to hold in the line. . . .

Reports from Greenfield have it that Don Grate, a sophomore end and brother of the famed Carl, suffered an arm injury in the Frankfort game that is serious enough to keep him out of uniform for several weeks. . . . Wonder if he'll be ready for the joust with the Tigers on October 6?

Logan's Chieftains have scored 120 points in 96 minutes of play, McArthur going down 59-0 and Gloucester taking it on the chin 61-0. . . . The reason back of Lancaster's annual trek to Steubenville is $600 on the line. . . . That's a nice bunch of money in the till. . . .

Here's just a little tribute to a Circleville athlete who is trying his damndest despite a physical drawback. . . . Paul Walters, left end for the Red and Black, has been going about his duties without a complaint although a recently treated toe has not healed and he is suffering from an ouchy ankle. . . . Walters, although he continues to play the best of his ability, is not able to get off the flat of his one foot. . . . A few more boys trying as hard as Walters is doing would be a big benefit to the Tiger chances. . . .

CONN, BETTINA READY TO FIGHT IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25—Sweet William Conn, the pride of this 'teeming industrial metropolis, will go out to defend his light heavyweight boxing crown tonight for the first time against unorthodox Mello Bettina, from whom he captured the title last July 13.

The fight will mark the crossroads in the careers of both fighters and it is almost imperative for both their futures that they emerge the victor. That, of course, is impossible.

At stake for the handsome Pittsburgh champion will be a chance to enter into competition with the heavyweights—and a possible crack at Champion Joe Louis, which probably will net the first million dollar gate since the Tunney-Dempsey era, if it comes to pass.

APOLYX killed Doyle suddenly early yesterday in his hotel room at Washington, Pa. He had stopped off there on a trip to the World's Fair to scout a game for the Detroit Tigers, for whom he had scouted for 24 years. Previous to that he had hunted ball players for Cleveland, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Doyle is survived by his widow, a daughter, and four sons. Among the outstanding players uncovered by Doyle were Hank Greenberg, Tommy Bridges, Gerald Walker, Frank Doljack, Al Todd, Sam Jones, Billy Southworth, George Sisler and Jojo White.

St. Louis Must Sweep All Four Games To Have Crown Chance

BOTH EXTEND STREAKS

Each Club Has But Seven Contests Remaining In Year's Play

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 — The National League pennant race now has reached the point where we can attempt to foretell by mere hours when the last gasps will be made. Specifically, the end could arrive by sundown tomorrow, with the Cincinnati Reds finally established as the winners, the new champions and the opponents, to the best of their ability, of the New York Yankees in the World Series starting next week. Or the contrary St. Louis Cardinals could stage off what seems to be the bitter inevitable for another 24 hours and perhaps more.

Anyhow, the Reds and Cards are both in the midst of winning streaks that have reached seven games, and the former still are in front by 3 1/2 games. The showdown to everything that has transpired up to now this season may be present in Tuesday's double-header between the contenders at Cincinnati. If they can't settle it tomorrow they almost certainly will in single games Wednesday and Thursday.

Here is the situation as of today, an open date on the schedule for both clubs:

	W.	L.	Pct.	To Play
Cincinnati	93	54	.633	7
St. Louis	89	57	.610	7

Sunday to Bring End

On Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the Reds wind up with the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cards finish with the Chicago Cubs—bringing the season to a close.

As things stand by this time it is almost an absolute necessity that the Cards win four straight from the Reds. Three out of the four would leave them 1 1/2 games behind with only three left.

The Cards are playing good enough baseball right now and have been for a couple of weeks to win the pennant more often than not, but, it just so happens, that the Reds are in stride down through the stretch, too.

The Cards, for instance, knocked the Chicago Cubs off by 9 to 1 yesterday, with Max Lanier on the mound, but the Reds trimmed the Pirates, 11 to 2, behind Paul Derringer, who scored his 24th triumph.

Meantime, the Brooklyn Dodgers continued to make their presence felt in the National League scramble by defeating the Philadelphia Phillies, 3 to 1 and 6 to 1 and with that moved into third place, one-half game ahead of the Cubs and 10 behind the second place Cards.

The Boston Bees lost to the New York Giants, 5 to 4 in the opener of a twin bill and took the nightcap, 5 to 3.

Yanks Win Again

The New York Yankees—already in as pennant-winners—clung to their 17-game lead in the American League by defeating the Washington Senators, 3 to 2, while the Boston Red Sox were downing the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 4. The Detroit Tigers defeated the Cleveland Indians, 2 to 1 and 9 to 1 and the Chicago White Sox won from the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 9 and 4 to 3.

Ohio Grid Season Opens In Stride Next Week End

COLUMBUS, Sept. 25—Football and tumbling leaves clogged the pungent autumn atmosphere today as Ohio college teams shifted into high gear preparing for a heavy week end slate involving 22 games, including 12 intersectional battles and four Ohio Conference tilts.

On every front, squads dug in for red hot practice sessions. Restraint was cast aside as every play in the book and some new ones too were diligently rehearsed. Those eleven which have tasted action were drilled in departments where glaring errors were apparent. Those eleven which have tasted action were drilled in departments where glaring errors were apparent. Those answering the battle cry for the first time were endeavoring to whip together a "mistake proof" offense and defense.

Headlining the week's card was the Dayton-Western Reserve match in Cleveland Saturday. Reputedly two of the strongest teams in the state, the Fliers and Red Cats were ready to offer mid-season football on opening day.

Conference Frays Booked
Ohio Conference games slated for Saturday are Ashland at Heidelberg; Kenyon at Capital; Ohio Northern at Wooster and Otterbein at Case.

Games Friday night are Rio Grande at Marietta; Youngstown at Ohio Wesleyan; St. Marys of Texas at Xavier; Alfred Holbrook at Georgetown; Transylvania at Denison. Other Saturday games: Wittenberg at Carnegie Tech; Ohio U. at Butler; Bluffton at Bowling Green; Manchester at Defiance; Hiram at Baldwin-Wallace; Lawrence Tech at Kent State; Mount Union at Miami; Muskingum at Washington and Jefferson.

Wheaton at Akron; Tampa at Cincinnati; Detroit Tech at Toledo. Sunday: John Carroll at St. Francis.

Spilled over the last weekend in a none too startling upset was Ohio University. Hampered with a weak forward wall, the Bobcats fell before Western Kentucky's slashing offense. The score was 14 to 7. It was one of the few times in recent years that the Green and White boys have been upset on their own gridiron.

Ohio U. Weaker
The Bobcat team was a far departure from mighty Athenians of the past who have ventured forth in inaugural contests to whip opposition as Illinois, Indiana and Navy.

The picture was more favorable at Ohio Wesleyan where George Gauthier sent a powerful team onto the field to submerge Alma of Michigan, 27 to 0. For the first time in three or four years, Wesleyan supporters were cheered over prospects for a winning season.

Toledo flashed abundant strength in wallowing Valparaiso, 39 to 0. The Rockets tallied in every period and gained 433 yards from scrimmage. Halfback Bill Beach reeled off the longest run of the day, a 74-yard touchdown jaunt.

In the other Saturday fray, Bluffton edged Kenyon, 3 to 0, a field goal in the last quarter being the deciding margin.

RICKEY TO SEE ONE CHAIN TEAM IN TITLE FRAY

ROCHESTER, Sept. 25—Branch Rickey, magician of the once rampant Cardinal chain gang of baseball, today can succor partial solace even if St. Louis loses its fight against Cincinnati for the National League flag. At least he has a representative in the Little World Series, which starts with his Rochester team meeting Louisville, American Association survivor, here Tuesday night.

Billy Southworth's hustling ball players won the clincher game and the series four victories to three in the ninth inning here yesterday, before a packed house of 15,000. The score was 2-1, with the winning marker stamped across the plate on Carden Gillenwater's single, Marty Marion's bunt, Herschel Lyons' infield out, an intentional walk to Whitey Kurovski and Harry Davis' single.

HOME RUN HITTERS

National League—Cooney, Boston; Hudson, Brooklyn; Mize, St. Louis; Moore, St. Louis; Van Robays, Pittsburgh.

American League—DiMaggio, New York; Lodigiani, Philadelphia; Cronin, Boston; Greenberg, Detroit; York, Detroit; Gehring, Detroit; Grimes, Cleveland; Clift, St. Louis.

HOME RUN LEADERS

National League—Ott, New York 27; Mize, St. Louis, 27; Camille, Brooklyn 26.

American League—Fox, Boston 35; Greenberg, Detroit, 32; DiMaggio, New York, 30; Williams, Boston 30.

THREE AUTO CRASHES INVESTIGATED DURING WEEK END; TRIO IN JAIL

TWO MEN HURT IN ACCIDENT AT SCIPPO BRIDGE

Overtured Car In Uptown District Draws Huge Crowd To Scene

FOUR PERSONS UNINJURED

Driving Intoxicated Charges To Be Filed Against Several Motorists

Three auto accidents in which no one was seriously hurt were reported in Circleville and Pickaway County Saturday night. Three men are under arrest as a result of the accidents.

Pearl Valentine, 433 Abernathy Avenue was arrested by police to face a charge of driving when intoxicated after the car he was driving was involved in a collision on East Ohio Street in front of the Mount of Praise about 7 p. m. Saturday.

Police said Valentine was driving westward and collided with the car driven by W. A. Martin of Kingston, going eastward. The fronts of both cars were damaged.

Frank Joplin, 29, Orient Route 2, suffered a broken left collarbone and Alva Swank, 29, Darbyville, received a cut on the forehead when the car in which they were riding missed a curve on the Kingston pike at the Scippo Creek bridge, went through a guardrail and overturned. The accident happened about 10 p. m. Saturday. Both men are in the county jail. Deputy Sheriffs Earl Weaver and Robert Adkins, who investigated the accident, said the men were intoxicated.

Taken To Berger

They said Joplin was driving south. The car left the road on the north side of the bridge. The men were taken to Berger Hospital by the deputies. They were treated by Dr. D. V. Courtwright.

The deputies said Swank had been released Wednesday from the county jail after serving a fine for intoxication.

Four persons escaped with bruises at 10:45 p. m. Saturday when their car overturned in a collision with a truck at Court and Pinckney Streets.

The auto was driven by Walter Cottrell, Circleville Route 5. He was accompanied by his wife and baby and his brother, Burl. Police said Cottrell, going north on Court Street, was making a left turn into Pinckney Street. The car was in collision with a truck, going southward, and driven by John Kaufman, Gallipolis. Police said the truck hit the right rear fender of the auto causing it to overturn.

The accident happened when a large crowd of shoppers was on the downtown streets.

The sheriff's department reported cars driven by Hubert V. Peele, Adelphi, and Edgel McNichols, South Bloomingville Route 2, were damaged Friday evening when they collided in a bridge on Route 56 about a fourth of a mile west of Laurelvale.

Highways Crowded

Highways were jammed with traffic Sunday. One of the largest crowds in many months packed Circleville stores Saturday night. Cooler temperatures, reminding folk of their fall and winter needs, are believed to have brought in the large crowd of shoppers.

UNITES CONDUCTED SUNDAY FOR JOHN M. HICKEL, 83

Funeral services were held Sunday for John M. Hickel, 83, widely known resident of Johnson's Crossing, west of New Holland, and a native of the Perry Township community. Mr. Hickel died last Friday.

Mr. Hickel has operated a grain elevator and general store at Johnson's Crossing for many years retiring several years ago.

He was a member of Grace Methodist Church of Washington C. H. For years he was prominently associated with Oak Chapel Methodist Church near New Holland.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. B. E. Kelley, of Washington C. H., one brother and one sister, Samuel D. Hickel, of Williamsport, and Mrs. John Steinhouser, of near Clarksburg. Mr. and Mrs. Hickel had been married for nearly 59 years.

Warsaw Afire As Nazis Hurl Death At City

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 25—Tales of horror and heroism, destruction and madness, crackled today from the Warsaw radio station as the half-destroyed Polish capital fought on through unceasing German bombardments.

Music by Chopin was transmitted at intervals between news broadcasts which told dramatically that at least 1,000 civilians were killed in firing which went on incessantly since Saturday afternoon.

Half the houses in Warsaw were on fire, the announcer said. Many have leaped to their death from flaming buildings, and many more have gone insane and committed suicide.

The radio gave macabre descriptions of streets filled with dead, while nurses rush into the streets to aid the wounded only, in many cases, to meet death themselves.

An aerial bomb hit the church of Saint Sauveur during evening service Sunday, but the priest went calmly on with the vespers, telling the congregation not to become excited.

While the Germans threw shells into the city for hour after hour, dozens of Reich airplanes flew over the city in ten air raids Sunday alone. The polytechnical school and national theatre were burned to ashes, the radio station announced.

Appalling sights were witnessed when the Ujadzowsky hospital and hundreds of patients were killed, the broadcast asserted. Doctors and nurses struggled through the night to find the wounded in the debris, their searchlights merely bringing to view fresh horrors.

After the strains of Chopin died away and the Warsaw announcer ended his news broadcasts, he cried out in an agitated voice: "England! France! Please rush help—we are being slaughtered!"

Nevertheless, it was asserted, the morale of the civilians and soldiers remains high, and the announcer said "our soldiers will continue to fight on to victory."

(An Exchange Telegraph—British—dispatch from Warsaw said that early assistance for Warsaw was indispensable if hundreds of thousands of lives are to be saved. Warsaw officials believe that in spite of the circumstances, the city's SOS will be answered, said Exchange.)

SUGAR RETURNED
Four 25-pound sacks of sugar, missing Saturday from the truck of W. J. Weaver & Son believed stolen, were left at the police department Saturday night by a resident who found the merchandise after it had fallen from the truck.

NO INFORMATION ON CAR
The sheriff's department has received no information concerning the auto of Gordon Dunkel, New Holland, stolen Friday night from a street in the village.

CAROL ATTENDS FUNERAL RITES FOR CALINESCU

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 25—Stringent measures against any internal action which might result in foreign intervention continued in Rumania today following last rites for Armand Calinescu, the premier who was assassinated Thursday by members of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard.

King Carol II risked his own life to attend services in Bucharest for his slain friend and close adviser. He was, however, closely guarded when state officials and government authorities paid tribute to Calinescu at the Athenium in Bucharest.

Afterwards the body was taken by train to Curta De Argea, the slain premier's birthplace, for burial.

Young Crown Prince Michael marched alone behind the hearse, which was drawn by six oxen, to the place of burial. Scores of important figures made the trip, but King Carol remained in Bucharest.

As the coffin was lifted from the train, police arrested Spanish Minister Pratt Y. Souza's chauffeur and threatened to shoot him on the ground that he was a member of the Iron Guard. The minister later secured the chauffeur's release on the plea that his opinions had been changed.

TOMMY RIGGS AND BETTY LOU

With Lois Ravel, Baltimore-born blues singer set as guest vocalist, Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou will get into the newspaper business on their weekly party tonight at 8:30 over the NBC-Red network. Betty Lou starts a daily and makes her own news when she falls to pick up legitimate stories. The news she makes, gets Mr. Tommy into trouble. Miss Ravel is making her first appearance on the air since an unfortunate illness which has kept her in the west for the past seventeen months. She'll sing "Over the Rainbow" on the Riggs show.

BOB HOPE

Judy Garland, new member in the Bob Hope radio line-up will sing "Over the Rainbow," from her current picture hit, "The Wizard of Oz" which she opens with Bob and Professor Jerry Colonna Tuesday at 10 p. m. over the NBC-Red network. Skinnay Ennis and Mrs. Frontenac Sidesaddle, a new character played by Elvia Allman, will match vacation yarns with Bob, Colonna and Judy. The program will be highlighted by a song sketch titled "Start the Day Right."

RADIO BRIEFS

Ann Nichols, author of "Able's Irish Rose," is reported to be angling for the rights to serialize "Able."

The Shadow started its third year on the air in its present format Sunday. This is the program that gave Orson Welles his big radio debut previous to the Martian debacle.

Betty Garde, featured character actress in "Mr. District Attorney" is reported to have signed with RKO to portray her stage role in Primrose Path, her successful Broadway play of last season.

Bobby Dolan, baton swinger for Walter O'Keefe, starts rehearsing a pit band for the new Max Gordon "Very Warm For May," a musical written by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein.

Bob Crosby's "Manhattan Mast" clause in his contract has caused the young maestro to transfer his family from Chicago to New York. They move into a midtown apartment this week.

400 AT FOURTH ANNUAL SALE AT FLORENCE HOME

A crowd estimated at 400 persons from throughout Ohio and nearby states attended the fourth annual auction sale of antiques held Saturday by Miss Anna E. Florence, Jackson Township. The sale started at 9:30 a. m. and lasted until about 4:30 p. m. Buyers were present from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and other nearby states.

Miss Florence said prices received for the antiques were good. The sale includes various articles of furniture, rare glass, china, prints, paintings and textiles. Practically all of the items were collected in Ohio, Miss Florence said.

STATE'S POLICE SEEKING TRIO OF PEN FUGITIVES

LONDON, Sept. 25 — Police throughout the state today searched for three escaped convicts, two of whom walked away from the greenhouse at London Prison farm while the other fled from the Lebanon honor camp.

The two felons who escaped from the London Prison Farm were reported seen in Urbana. They were David Branham, Champaign County bank robber, and William Miller, serving a one to ten year sentence.

Horace Thornton, Montgomery County robber who had served almost ten years and who would have been eligible for parole in January, fled from the Lebanon camp.

There have been 20 escapes from the London Prison Farm and its camps within the last seven weeks.

INFANT TRAPPED IN EXPLOSION OF STOVE IS DEAD

COLUMBUS, Sept. 25 — After being trapped in his grandparent's home by an oil stove explosion, six-month-old Larry Speakman was dead of suffocation today. Repeated attempts by neighbors to rescue the infant failed.

The baby had been staying at the home of its grandparents while, police said, his mother was serving out a workhouse term imposed for vagrancy. The father was said to be somewhere in the countryside cutting corn.

Myrtle Speakman, 15, daughter of the grandparents, said she lit the stove to prepare dinner when it exploded. Spreading oil-fueled flames immediately cut her and her two sisters from the bedroom where the baby lay. When firemen finally reached the child after putting out the fire, they expressed belief that it was still breathing, but it was pronounced dead upon arrival at Children's hospital.

CAROL ATTENDS FUNERAL RITES FOR CALINESCU

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 25—Stringent measures against any internal action which might result in foreign intervention continued in Rumania today following last rites for Armand Calinescu, the premier who was assassinated Thursday by members of the pro-Nazi iron guard.

King Carol II risked his own life to attend services in Bucharest for his slain friend and close adviser. He was, however, closely guarded when state officials and government authorities paid tribute to Calinescu at the Athenium in Bucharest.

Afterwards the body was taken by train to Curta De Argea, the slain premier's birthplace, for burial.
Young Crown Prince Michael marched alone behind the hearse, which was drawn by six oxen, to the place of burial. Scores of important figures made the trip, but King Carol remained in Bucharest.
As the coffin was lifted from the train, police arrested Spanish Minister Pratt Y. Souza's chauffeur and threatened to shoot him on the ground that he was a member of the iron guard. The minister later secured the chauffeur's release on the plea that his opinions had been changed.

TOMMY RIGGS AND BETTY LOU
With Lois Ravel, Baltimore-born blues singer set as guest vocalist, Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou will get into the newspaper business on their weekly party to-night at 8:30 over the NBC-Red network. Betty Lou starts a daily and makes her own news when she fails to pick up legitimate stories. The news she makes, gets Mr. Tommy into trouble. Miss Ravel is making her first appearance on the air since an unfortunate illness which has kept her in the west for the past seventeen months. She'll sing "Over the Rainbow" on the Riggs show.

Judy Garland, new member in the Bob Hope radio line-up will sing "Over the Rainbow," from her current picture hit, "The Wizard of Oz" which she opens with Bob and Professor Jerry Colonna Tuesday at 10 p. m. over the NBC-Red network. Skinnay Ennis and Mrs. Frontenac Sidesaddle, a new character played by Elvia Allman, will match vacation yarns with Bob, Colonna and Judy. The program will be highlighted by a song sketch titled "Start the Day Right."

RADIO BRIEFS
Ann Nichols, author of "Able's Irish Rose," is reported to be angling for the rights to serialize "Able."

Betty Garde, featured character actress in "Mr. District Attorney" is reported to have signed with RKO to portray her stage role in Primrose Path, her successful Broadway play of last season.

Bobby Dolan, baton swinger for Walter O'Keefe, starts rehearsing a pit band for the new Max Gordon "Very Warm For May," a musical written by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein. Bob Crosby's "Manhattan Must" clause in his contract has caused the young maestro to transfer his family from Chicago to New York. They move into a midtown apartment this week.

400 AT FOURTH ANNUAL SALE AT FLORENCE HOME

A crowd estimated at 400 persons from throughout Ohio and nearby states attended the fourth annual auction sale of antiques held Saturday by Miss Anna B. Florence, Jackson Township. The sale started at 9:30 a. m. and lasted until about 4:30 p. m. Buyers were present from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and other nearby states.

Miss Florence said prices received for the antiques were good. The sale includes various articles of furniture, rare glass, china, prints, paintings and textiles. Practically all of the items were collected in Ohio, Miss Florence said.
